MUST DIE!

The Guillotine is Caserio's Fate.

Quick Punishment for Carnot's Murderer.

In Thirty Minutes the Jury Return a Verdict of Guilty.

His Trial Only Lasted Two Days.

The Judge Pronounces the Death Sentence.

The Assassin's Defiant Attitude in Court.

France Does Not Stand on Ceremony or Technicalities When Dealing With Anarchists.

LYONS, Aug. 3.—There were few people around the palace of justice when the trial of Santo Caserio, the assassin of President Carnot was resumed today. The court regulations and military guard were the same as yesterday.

The prisoner was escorted into the dock handcuffed to two gendarmes and with two gendarmes bringing up the rear. The prisoner seemed even more defiant than yesterday, and took his seat with a mocking smile on his face.

Leblanc, the soldier who was a fellow prisoner with Caserio at Marseilles, testified that Caserio told him that he intended to kill President Carnot probably at Lyons when the chief magistrate visited that city.

"That is a lie," interrupted Caserio, excitedly. "I never told you or any one else anything about my plans."

Leblanc continued: "Caserio confided to me that he was designated by lot."

"That is untrue," shrieked Caserio.

"How untrue?" asked the soldier, turning to the prisoner. "I said to you, after you had made that remark, 'but, who would be so bold as to kill President Carnot? I saw him in Paris surrounded by troops and police.' You answered, 'he will be chosen by lot.'"

There was great excitement in court while the prisoner and Leblanc were speaking to each other. Later Leblanc said:

"Caserio told me that he had often seen King Humbert in the streets, but he added that to kill him it would be necessary to have a rifle and shoot him from the street, as he was surrounded by soldiers."

"That is a lie," shouted Caserio. "I was never chosen to kill President Carnot. Moreover, absolute liberty prevails among the anarchists."

The prosecuting attorney reviewed at length all the details of the trial and demanded that the jury should not hesitate to do its duty. M. Dubreuil, counsel for the defense, followed and made an appeal for the prisoner.

At the conclusion of the public prosecutor's speech there were visible signs of delight throughout the court room at the eloquent denunciation of anarchists, their doctrines and their wretched tool, Caserio, whose life, counsel insisted, the jury should render to justice, the law and the rightful demand of civilized society.

Caserio smiled with contempt during the public prosecutor's address and then, in common with all present, paid close attention to the remarks of his counsel, M. Dubreuil, whose appeal for the prisoner lasted half an hour.

M. Dubreuil based his defense of the prisoner on three points: First, that there was lunacy in the prisoner's family. Second, his anarchist surroundings. Third, the impossibility of reconciling the assassin's religious life with a premeditated attempt at murder. Under the new law, the presiding judge prohibited the publication of the chief portion of M. Dubreuil's address.

At the conclusion of his counsel's remarks Caserio seemed pleased, and the jury rose amid a general movement of relief upon the part of the audience. When the jury went out there was considerable excited conversation, mingled with whispered speculation as to how long the jury would be out.

During the absence of the jury Caserio was removed to his cell beneath the court house, and the judge retired with his associates to await the return of the men who were to pronounce upon the prisoner's guilt. When, after an absence of less than thirty minutes, the jury re-entered, the judge resumed his place and for a moment dead silence reigned throughout the court.

Caserio was brought in and faced the court for the last time. Judge Breuillac turned to the prisoner for a moment, and then, addressing the jury, asked the latter the formal question:

"Is Caserio Santo Geronimo guilty or not guilty of the crime of assassinating the president of the republic?"

There was some confusion as the interpreter translated to the prisoner what was said, but audible over the interpreter's voice was the reply of the foreman of the jury:

"Guilty without extenuating circumstances."

There was deep silence as the verdict was translated to Caserio, who received it with a smile of cynical contempt. The presiding judge, as soon as the prisoner was acquainted with the jury's finding, arose, and speaking directly to the assassin, said:

"The court condemns Caserio Santo Geronimo to death. You have three days in which to appeal to the court of cessation."

To this Caserio returned a scornful shout of "Vive la revolution social."

The anarchial cry was hardly out of his mouth when the gendarmes handcuffed to the prisoner, jerked him towards the door leading to the cells beneath the court. This door was opened hastily, Caserio was hurried through, and as he disappeared a feeble cry of "courage camarades, vive l'anarchie" was heard echoing from the stone corridor through which the assassin was being hurried.

By this time the presiding judge was bowing to his associates to the public prosecutor and to counsel for the defense; the audience began to disappear, the door through which Caserio had passed was shut with a loud clang, the door of the judge's room was opened, the public vanished, the clock pointed to a quarter of one, and all who saw the trial rushed out to tell the outer world of what they had seen and heard.

M. Debruiel, the prisoner's counsel, gave notice of appeal, and in doing so asked that the presiding judge's charge to the jury, at the opening of the session, be entered on the records.

CATHOLIC TEMPERANCE.

The St. Paul Convention Endorses the Views of Satolli.

His Decision Will Crystalize the Influence of the Church Against the Saloon.

ST. PAUL, Minn., August 3.—The Catholic abstainers did not meet until after 10 o'clock today and at once began work on changes in the constitution. They hoped to finish up their work of the convention in one session, including the election of officers.

The resolutions adopted strongly endorsed the papal delegate's temperance views. They state that the union sees in the recent action of Bishop Watterson, which has been so nobly sustained by Mgr Satolli, a long step in the right direction.

It is believed that this action will crystalize the influence of the church against the saloon, and will stamp this latter indelibly on the irreconcilable enemy of the church. The decision of the papal delegate cannot fail to give additional authority to the recommendation of the court of Baltimore, that all Catholic saloonkeepers abandon as soon as they can the dangerous traffic and embrace a more becoming way of making a living.

The decision will serve as a renewal of the invitation which our holy father, Leo XIII, has already addressed to all priests of the land to enter into the work of temperance reform. "And with the clergy strongly committed against the saloon, the day of vindication for the church in America will be near at hand. The scandal of a preponderating number of Catholics in the saloon business is a disgrace too long endured. Whatever the cause of the fact, a new day is at hand."

COLORED DEMOCRATS.

Indianapolis Expects a Large Attendance at the Convention.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 3.—The colored democrats of this city are making extensive arrangements for the meeting of the National Democratic league, which will convene here about the middle of the month and hold a two days' session. Prominent members of the colored race who have recently affiliated with the democratic party are expected, and every state in the union, it is said, will be represented. Liberal subscriptions have been made to the fund for the entertainment of the delegates and those who visit the city on that occasion. Local colored democrats say that the meeting will be the largest gathering of colored democrats that has ever assembled, and that steps will be taken to perfect an organization in every state, if not in time for the present campaign at least in time for thorough organization before the presidential contest of 1896.

THE COLD WAVE.

Frosts Will Prevail in Wisconsin Tonight.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—The weather bureau has ordered frost signals displayed throughout Wisconsin tonight and Prof. Moore, of the bureau predicts severe frosts in that state tonight. Last night broke the record for cool weather in the month of August in Chicago and serious damage to the crops in the northwest is feared.

Held Up a Stage.

TRUCKEE, Cala., Aug. 3.—A lone highwayman held up the Truckee and Tahoe stage at a point three miles from Truckee. There were fifteen passengers on board. When the stage was stopped the passengers were told to throw out what money they had and contributed $73 to the highwayman.

THE END IS NEAR

For an Agreement Among the Leaders on the Tariff Bill.

Probability That the Measure Will be Reported Which Will Pass Both Houses and Become a Law.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Before the conferees began their session today, there seemed to be an impression among the leaders that an agreement would be reached in the near future.

The house conferees were especially encouraged with the progress made during the week, and said that a bill could be reported which would pass both houses and become a law.

One week ago the senate, after three days, sent the bill back to conference. The next day the conferees met. It was at this time that the house conferees were informed that the senate bill must be accepted without the dotting of an "i" or the crossing of a "t." This assertion was couched in more diplomatic language, however, but that was the effect of it.

Substantially, the spokesman of the senate conferees said to the members of the house:

"Gentlemen, the tariff bill has just escaped defeat by three tie votes and the fact that a former republican senator refrained from voting. Now you know the situation. It is a positive fact that the senate bill and no other can pass. It will be unsafe to trust it in the senate with any change whatever. The only way in which there can be any tariff legislation is for you, gentlemen, to take this bill and pass it."

The session was very short. The senate conferees announced to their colleagues that the house members said nothing. The house members held a short conference among themselves. No other meeting of the full conference was held until Monday. The interval gave the house conferees time to ascertain the sentiment of the house, and on Monday they announced that they were willing to confer and see if a compromise could not be reached, but would not accept the senate bill in its entirety, as had been insisted upon Saturday. They pointed out several defects in the senate bill. There was for the first time a wavering on the part of the senators who had stood behind what was known as the caucus bill.

Many democratic senators, not including those known as conservatives, said that the house was entitled to some consideration and that it never was the understanding that there should not be some concessions to the house. There were so many senators who were of the same opinion as the house conferees that they made themselves felt, and instead of adhering to the position of Saturday, viz: the senate bill in its entirety or no bill—the conference has proceeded with a view of adjusting differences and making concessions, corrections and changes. Neither side expects to get all it wants, but both senate and house conferees do expect a tariff bill.

It is true that the three main points of difference have not been adjusted, but they are in a fair way to be settled. From the start the sugar schedule has been the main point of difference; while the house by its vote made sugar free, its conferees have been persuaded to concede that a duty is necessary for revenue. The one-eighth differential in favor of refined sugar has been the obnoxious feature to the house, but it will probably be accepted, as the conferees think that the advantage to the refiners is concealed in the ad valorem rate. The difference between the price of raw sugar and refined, which will reduce the amount of duty to be levied can be manipulated by the trust to its great benefit, and the injury of the consumer and the revenue of the government. The senate conferees tell the house members to write the schedule so as to prevent any such manipulation and it will be acceptable if it retains the same duty and protection to the sugar interests contained in the senate bill.

It is this problem that has been engaging the conferees for a day or two and many propositions have been presented and rejected, but the opinion is expressed that it will finally be adjusted.

The other main points of difference, coal and iron ore, have also been the subject of more or less discussion, with but little success, as the points of compromise do not afford as much latitude as the sugar schedule. The fact that the democrats of the house generally do not care much about either of these questions save as to the principle involved, has given the senators reason to believe that they can hold them in the bill but the house conferees feel that they can adjust the matter by securing free coal, with a proviso that the senate rate, forty cents a ton, shall be imposed upon coal coming from those countries which refuse the free admission of coal produced in the United States. It is agreed that iron ore becomes less a matter of contention on both sides, and it is believed that it will not be allowed to stand in the way of a final agreement.

The tariff conference appears to have reached very nearly the point at which either an early agreement will be reached or a decision to report a disagreement. The senate conferees apparently have arrived at the conclusion that there has been already a sufficient exchange of views upon general lines and that the time has come when the direct issue must be reached. It is stated that a sugar schedule has been prepared which the senate will accept and which is to be presented to the house members as the extreme limit to which the senate will go. The schedule, it is said, still provides a differential duty on refined sugar and in other particulars maintains the protective features of the senate schedule. Representative Bland has introduced a resolution instructing the committee on ways and means to report a bill placing all sugars on the free list and for raising $100,000,000 revenue by an income tax. Mr. Bland says concerning the resolution:

"I have not consulted Mr. Wilson or anyone else, but have acted on my own judgment in submitting the resolution. My purpose is to press it if there is an indication that the general tariff bill will fail. The provision is somewhat different from that suggested in Mr. Wilson's speech (at the time the president's letter to him was read), as it proposes raising the necessary government revenue by an income tax. This feature is essential, however, if sugar is placed on the free list. I believe this separate tariff measure would quickly pass both branches of congress if the general bill failed."

JOE DANDO INJURED

In a Wreck on the N. Y., P. and O. Railroad in Ohio,

In a Brother-in-Law of Sam Harmon, Joe Douglas and Christ Newcomer, of This City.

URBANA, Ohio, Aug. 3.—The east bound New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio passenger train this morning, struck a freight car projecting from a side track here. Joe Dando, the engineer, was internally injured and Fireman James Douglas slightly hurt. The engine was badly wrecked and several freight cars converted into kindling wood.

The above telegram came to THE SENTINEL this morning over the wires of the Associated Press and knowing that Jos. H. Douglas, the well known restauranter of this city, was a brother in law of Mr. Dando, the injured engineer, our reporter informed him of the accident, which was the first knowledge he had of it and he immediately communicated it to Samuel Harmon and Christ Newcomer who are also brothers-in-laws of Mr. Dando.

The injured engineer is quite well known in this city. He was married to Miss Jennie Harmon, the daughter of Daniel Harmon, and the sister of Mrs Jos. H. Douglas and Mrs. Christian Newcomer, the latter being the wife of the manager of the Harmon house.

Mr. Dando resides at Dayton, Ohio, and is an old railroad man. He began his career as a newsboy on the railroads and worked his way up to the position of an engineer on the railroad. His wife was at Milwaukee, visiting a married daughter, at the time the accident occurred.

STREET RAILWAY EMBARRASSED.

Tiffin's Lines in the Hands of a Receiver and May Be Sold.

TIFFIN, Ohio, Aug. 3.—Three of Tiffin's street railways which are embraced in the Tiffin and Intersuburban Consolidated Railway company passed into the hands of Meshech Frost as receiver today. The assets are $150,000 and the liabilities will likely exceed that figure. The appointment of a receiver was made by Judge Norris at the suit of the Cambria Iron company to secure a claim for $5,000, but this was merely a form, as the Consolidated, since it failed to float its $350 000 of bonds in New York City, is hopelessly involved and the only way out of the difficulty is the sale of all their roads.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS LAWS.

Commission Adopts a Constitution and Provides for a Supreme Tribunal.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 3.—The commission of the supreme lodge of the Knights of Pythias are holding conferences in this city. John H. Alexander, of Leesburg, Va., one of the commission, said that the commission had decided on a new constitution for the order modeled after the United States constitution, and that the most important new feature would be supreme tribunal, a sort of supreme court of the order. This court will be empowered to finally adjust all rulings and decisions of officers of the order in case of appeal.

INDIANA RED MEN.

A. G. Mickle Elected President and Marion the Next Meeting Place.

ANDERSON, Ind., Aug. 3.—The Eastern Indiana Red Men held their seventh annual meeting here and 3 000 braves from different sections of the state were in attendance. At the annual business meeting in the afternoon Marion was selected upon the sixth ballot for the place of the next meeting. Albert G. Mickle was elected president and R. B. Buchanan secretary. Both are from Marion.

Narrow Escape.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 3.—The steamer Saturn had a narrow escape from being burned to the water's edge. After anchoring, her crew went ashore, intending to return at night. During their absence the fire started and gained considerable headway before it was discovered. When the firemen arrived they had to lay several hundred feet of hose and wade up to their necks in water. The deck was completely destroyed but the hull and machinery were saved.

Burned in His Cell.

ROSLYN, Wash., Aug. 3.—At 11 o'clock last night Bill Tequancy, an Indian, while lodged in jail for the night, set fire to his cell and was burned to a crisp. A coroner's jury this morning exonerated all parties from blame.

TRAIN ROBBER FOILED.

Express Messenger Ferguson Shot Near St. Louis.

Wounded in Hand and Shoulder, But Not Dangerously—Hold-Up Prevented by Bravery.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 3.—An unsuccessful attempt was made last night to rob the Texas express on the St. Louis and San Francisco railway, but the plans of the robbers were frustrated by the determined resistance of the express messenger, who received two bullet wounds while defending his charge. Train No 3, in charge of Conductor Mansfield, left the St. Louis Union depot at 8:25 p. m.

About 9.30, when the train was nearing Eureka, in St. Louis county, thirty miles from the city, Wells-Fargo Express Messenger Ferguson started to go from the car in which he was at work to the one immediately in the rear. At the door he was confronted by a masked man with a drawn revolver who commanded him to hold up his hands and inform him where the key to the safe could be found. But the messenger was brave. He too had a gun and he immediately began using it. The robber returned the fire and put one bullet through Ferguson's shoulder and another through his hand. Then he jumped from the train and escaped.

Ferguson believes he wounded the robber, but is not certain. The injured man was taken to Pacific, five miles west, where he was left in charge of physicians, and the train went on. His wounds are not considered serious.

Just after the encounter and within a few hundred yards of Eureka a bomb exploded under the wheels of the engine. This is the signal to stop and is considered evidence that the lone robber had confederates who were to board the train at this point, but the movement of the messenger toward the car necessitated immediate action on the part of the robber on the train, and his premature attempt was defeated by the pluck of the messenger. No attempt was made to board the train or to secure any of the money after the encounter in the express car.

A HAIRBREDTH ESCAPE.

ST LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 3.—A most remarkable feature of last night's attempt at train robbery near Eureka, Mo., was the escape of the entire train and 183 persons from absolute destruction.

The desperadoes, who were undoubtedly accomplices of the fellow with whom Express Messenger Ferguson had a fight, forced open a car of dynamite that stood on the side track below the station Eureka, and stole two big dynamite cartridges there, intended for heavy blasting in quarries and mines. Each cartridge was capable of tearing to pieces tons of solid rock. They were placed by the dastardly bandits on the rails, the intention being to destroy the train and plunder the richly laden express car and probably the passengers. It is a miracle that the entire train was not hurled to destruction, for the miscreants who attempted to wreck it placed the cartridges within a few feet of a car which contained ten tons of dynamite. They then secreted themselves and waited for the train that was due to arrive a few minutes before 10 o'clock. The train left St. Louis at 8:30 o'clock and was only a few minutes behind, the delay having been caused by the shooting of the express messenger by one of the robbers. When the forward wheels of the engine rolled on the cartridges there was a terrific explosion which lifted the machine from the tracks and tore the massive pilot from the bolts riveted to the engine. All the forward part of the machine was wrecked and twisted, and although it was able to carry the train a few miles beyond, it was so badly wrecked that another engine had to be procured. The entire train was severely shaken, the windows broken and the packages of letters thrown from the boxes in the mail car. It is wonderful how the carload of dynamite escaped. The explosion tore a great hole in the earth, wrested the rails from their fastenings and flung the ties in every direction. It tore open one side of the dynamite car and exposed to view tons of the powerful explosive, yet for some unaccountable reason this great mass of dynamite, with energy enough to blow an entire city off the earth, did not explode. If it had not a person of all those 183 passengers would have escaped.

Lake View Fire.

HOWARD CITY, Mich., Aug. 3.—The business portion of Lake View burned this morning. The loss is estimated at $130,000.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT.

A Pickpocket Who Was Fooled for Once.

Attempts to Go Through the Pockets of a Lady—Burglars Busy Last Night.

This morning, during the parade of Barnum & Bailey's circus, a pickpocket attempted to ply his villainous trade on Calhoun street. The fellow had his hand in a lady's pocket when he was seen by another lady standing near by. The police were called and given a description of the crook. He wore a black stiff hat and was pox marked on the nose.

RESIDENCE ENTERED.

Last night burglars entered the residence of M. F. Schmetzer, No 240 West Washington street. They broke into the pantry and took some bananas and ham and eggs. Nothing else was disturbed, although the thieves had a good opportunity to get some valuable plate. Mr. Schmetzer says the burglars are welcome to the food.

FOOLED THE POLICE.

Last night at Cutler's grocery, No. 268 East Wayne street, several police made an attempt to catch a burglar, who later turned out to be one of the former proprietors of the concern. The police were badly fooled.

BEHEADING DESERTERS.

China Shows No Mercy to the Disloyal.

News of the Asan Battle Confirmed—Foreign Countries Will be Neutral.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The only telegram of public interest received at the Japanese legation today related to the request made by the Japanese government concerning the protection asked to Japanese interests in Pekin by the American charge d'affairs there. An answer to the previous telegram giving the information desired by the Japanese government had been sent already by Mr. Mycnoka, the charge d'affairs here, but evidently had been delayed in transmission. The legation is without any official news concerning the reported repulse of Japanese troops at Asan. Considerable doubt exists in the minds of the officials as to the exact location of the place and there is some question of the reported fight. The minister of foreign affairs at Tokio has promised to keep the legation promptly informed of events, with a view to having them made public promptly here.

The Corean legation is still without any information from the home government concerning the condition of affairs in Corea with the exception of telegrams that have recently been received through other agencies from Seoul, its capital. Much regret is expressed by the Corean officials that war should occur on Corean territory, as it will result in great hardship to an already poor people. The presence of a very large army in the country is said by the Coreans to be a serious affair. Most of the natives are agriculturalists and the presence of armies will have the effect of disturbing them from their labors and resulting in a large loss to the crops. It is considered doubtful, however, whether Japan will make Corea the battle ground for the war already declared, and the belief is expressed that she will make a formidable attempt to capture Pekin and overthrow the existing dynasty.

It is reported that a number of Americans have signified to Japanese officers in this city their desire to enter the military service of Japan during the pending war with China. An exofficial of the United States to the former country calls attention to the fact that by the laws of the United States it is made a penal offense for an American citizen to enlist in the military service of either China or Japan when engaged in a war with a country at peace with the United States.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—A dispatch received here from Tein Tsin says that all deserters from the troops marching to Teku will be beheaded today. France was the first government to accept Great Britain's invitation to observe strict neutrality during the war between China and Japan.

In an interview today, the Hon. Thos. F. Bayard, the United States ambassador, said, in regard to the Chinese-Japanese troubles that the attitude of the United States would be one of benevolent neutrality, adding that the instructions sent to the United States envoys at Pekin and Tokio were direct evidence of that attitude. Mr. Bayard leaves London for Genoa on August 11, with the intention of enjoying a few weeks' yachting in the Mediterranean. Mr. Bayard will return to London before leaving for the United States.

BERLIN, Aug. 3.—A dispatch has been received from Tuen Tsin from a German official source, saying that the German gun boat Iltis witnessed the sinking of the Kow Shing. It is added that the crew of the Iltis rescued 150 Chinese, who were struggling in the water. A dispatch received here confirms the report that the Chinese were victorious over the Japanese in the recent battle at Asan, Corea.

FOR ONE NIGHT ONLY.

All the Electric Lights Will Burn Tonight.

All the electric lights in the city will be turned on tonight on account of the show. The boom, however, is for one night only.

This morning one of the large female tigers in Barnum & Bailey's show gave birth to two fine cubs. The little fellows are great curiousities but the mother does not take kindly to them and they will be taken away from her and given to a female dog to nurse. A female tiger seldom gives birth to more than three cubs.

A Tremendous Strike.

Old prices go out. New prices take their places. All $10.00, $35.00, $30.00, $28.00 suits, or any suit in store for $22.00, for ten days only.

CIRCUS IN TOWN.

Barnum & Bailey's Show Take the City by Storm.

Dazzling Street Parade This Morning—Streets Thronged With People—Weather Clear and Cool.

It was Kate Field who said that P. T. Barnum was the one man who knew how to run a circus. Barnum is dead these many years, but his show, like John Brown's soul, goes marching on despite hard times, strikes or discordant elements. Mr. Bailey, one of the principal owners of the show, has clearly demonstrated that he is a worthy successor of the illustrious P. T. B., and every year sees some pleasing innovation, so that the imputation of "the same old thing" does not apply to Barnum & Bailey's show.

The weather clerk dealt out as fine a day as anyone could desire—clear and cool, and the city's streets were thronged at an early hour. Barnum & Bailey were always noted for their gorgeous street parades and the pageant this morning was dazzling to the extreme. The small boy did not enjoy it any more than his father, who remarked to a friend at his elbow, as the glittering aggregation went majestically by, that "half the pleasure of such an occasion to the adult is the memory of the circus days of his youth."

The street parade was, in truth, simply grand. It began to move shortly after 9 o'clock and traversed the principal streets, which were black with people, many of them from nearby cities. The following was the order of parade:

Military band.
Gentlemen fox hunters and cavaliers.
Lady performers and side-saddle experts.
Band chariot, drawn by ten horses.
Open den of five tigers and trainer.
Open den of four lions and trainer.
Open den of six leopards and trainer.
Open den of six panthers and trainer.
Open den of six hyenas and trainer.
Open den of four bears and trainer.
Open den of six wolves and trainer.
Band chariot Esterpe, drawn by ten horses.
Mounted ladies of the hippodrome.
Gentlemen hippodrome riders.
Three teams of Roman standing racers.
Three four-horse Roman chariots.
Two elephants with howdahs and Oriental beauties.
Caravan of twelve performing elephants.
Dromedaries with Asiatic riders.
Dragon chariot with harnessed camels.
Chariot of India, drawn by ten horses.
Cinderella's fairy coach.
Blue Beard.
Old woman who lived in a shoe.
Santa Claus.
Little Red Riding Hood.
Sinbad, the sailor.
Mother Goose. Steam Calliope.

The representation of the crowned heads of Europe was a special feature and portrayed the originals in an accurate manner. The following nations were represented: China, Siam, Egypt, Japan, Persia, Turkey, Holland, Belgium, Sweden, Spain, Italy, Austria, Russia, France, Germany, England and America. The line of march was: West on Columbia to Harrison; south on Harrison to Baker; east on Baker to Calhoun; north on Calhoun to Berry; east on Berry to Court, north on Court to Main; east on Main to Clinton; and thence to the grounds on the east side of north Clinton.

To manage so big a concern as Barnum & Bailey's circus requires no little ability. They travel on their own trains, and have sixty cars of extra size to transport the property, and the most comfortable coaches and sleeping cars for the officials and the show people. The total number of men employed is more than 600. There are 350 horses, 200 wagons of all kinds, and the running expense is about $5,000 a day.

All the groceries and staple articles used in the circus are sent on ahead to different points on the road where the circus will find them waiting for them. The more perishable articles are secured in the local markets as needed. Circus men are fond of coffee, and dispose of 106 gallons for breakfast alone. During the last six months eight tons of this berry were consumed by the circus followers, to say nothing of 2 400 gallons of evaporated cream, 217,000 pounds of meat, 92,500 pounds of bread and 2 220 pounds of potatoes. Four thousand pieces of crockery are carried daily with the show, on which there is a breakage of 3½ per cent. The average number of meals served daily in the show is 2,165.

School Trustees Refuse to Pay Surplus Funds Into the State Treasury.

RICHMOND, Ind., Aug. 3.—A number of township trustees and school corporation treasurers met here yesterday to take some action regarding the school law providing for the return to the state treasury of all surplus tuition funds left at the end of the school year. The total surplus in Wayne county, that under the construction of the law by Attorney General Greene Smith and upheld by the supreme court must be turned over to the state is about $29,000. A resolution was adopted by the meeting providing that the surplus be not paid at present, and this means they intend fighting the decision of the supreme court and that the matter will be carried to the United States court. This action was taker by the advice of prominent attorneys, and it is believed that enough counties of the state join with this to make the fight a general one.

CUT HIS PAL.

Two Frenchmen Indulge Lively Cutting Affair.

Charles Bercot Stabs Julian P. in Two Places—Injured Man at the Hospital.

Whisky and a shameless woman near being the cause of a foul murder on East Columbia street last evening about 6 o'clock.

Two Frenchmen, Julian Parozt and Charles Bercot, got into an altercation over a woman and as a result Bercot stabbed Parozt in two places with pocket knife, causing dangerous wounds. Bercot had been out of town for some months and upon his return yesterday hunted up his old friend Parozt and both proceeded to get full on bad whisky. The two played pool in Kiefer's saloon, No. 44 East Columbia street, and later went to the room of a woman of the town not far from the saloon. Here the two Frenchmen got into an altercation over money matters. Bercot claiming that his pal had stolen $3 from him. The two men separated but some hours afterwards Bercot was coming west on Columbia street when he saw Parozt and a friend coming towards him him on the other side of the street. Bercot had his pocket knife out and crossed the street to meet him. When in front of Banet's saloon the older man jumped at Parozt and cut him in the neck and also in the groin. As he lay bleeding on the sidewalk Bercot ran through the saloon into the alley between Columbia and Main streets and a few moments later was caught by Officer Flickinger.

Parozt got up and walked over to the north side of Columbia street and fell exhausted from loss of blood near Henderson's feed store. The patrol wagon came up and took the wounded man to the Hope hospital, where Drs. Schrader and Myers attended. It was found that the artery in the left groin had been punctured by the knife blade and the man was slowly bleeding to death. The wound was less than an inch long, but the doctors made the incision much larger and tied a knot in the artery, stopping the loss of blood. The wound in the neck was about four-fifths of an inch long. The blade had penetrated backward instead of forward and thus instant death been averted, for had the blade pointed in the other direction the jugular would have been severed. Stitches were taken in both wounds and the injured man is resting easy today and will likely get well.

This morning Bercot was up before Mayor Oakley on a charge of assault with intent to kill. His preliminary was set for the 13th instant and in default of $5,000 bond he went to jail. The prisoner is a vicious looking fellow and very commonly dressed.

A plain drunk, from whom was taken a bottle of pure alcohol, was sent over for ten days.

LET the idle electric lights be turned on quickly.

TENNESSEE is safe. It rolled up a big democratic majority in the elections held in that state yesterday.

THE republicans of the Fourth Indiana district nominated James E. Watson, of Rushville, for congress.

THE American public, it seems, will never lose its love for the circus. The Barnum & Bailey show in this city today drew out a big crowd.

SENATOR VOORHEES is recovering from his recent illness, but there is not much prospect of the senator participating in any further proceedings of this congress.

THE board of public works ought to condemn some of the old frame buildings that are allowed to stand in the business center of the city. They are veritable fire traps and a menace to surrounding buildings.

THIS country leads the world in the use of telephones. The latest statistics show that in the United States with a population of 63,000,000, there are 237,000 exchange telephone subscribers, a number greater than that of all continental Europe, with a population of 300,000,000. Great Britain has but 45,000 subscribers, Germany 85,400, and France 24,000.

HERE is what Abraham Lincoln said of the law: "Let reverence of law be breathed by every mother to the lisping babe that prattles in her lap, let it be taught in the schools, seminaries and colleges; let it be written in primers, spelling books and almanacs; let it be preached from pulpits, and proclaimed in legislative halls, and enforced in courts of justice; in short, let it become the political religion of the nation.

THE annual report of State Gas Inspector Jordan shows that over $300,000,000 has been invested in manufactories along the gas belt in this state. The gas territory, he says, has nearly all been developed, and the fact that the pressure has fallen from 320 pounds to an average of 240 pounds shows how rapidly the supply is diminishing. The report states that the waste of gas during the first four years of its use in Indiana amounted to $20,000,000. Mr. Jordan believes the meter system is necessary to the proper saving of the fuel. He does not think that consumers will return to coal when the gas gives out, but that gas fuel will in time take the place of the natural article. Cheap pipe and cheap connections he regards as having caused a great loss of gas.

The Harvest-Outlook.

The government's weather crop bulletin for the week ending July 30 is exceedingly important. It shows that this was "the third successive week of abnormally warm weather over the northern districts east of the Rocky mountains," and that in most of these districts there was "less than the usual rainfall," while "the continued drought over the principal corn-producing states of the central valleys and northwest west has resulted in great damage to the corn crop." Cotton, however, suffered but slightly and tobacco was doing well except in Ohio.

After the recent great and widespread heat and drought it would be unreasonable to expect a more favorable bulletin. As yet there is nothing in the weather reports to indicate an improvement in the harvests throughout the northern sections of the country.

Features in Tomorrow's Sentinel.

In THE SENTINEL tomorrow Bill Nye, the greatest of all living humorists, will talk about "Buzzards," and when we announce that fact the reading public may make up their minds that they will be furnished with something really good, for as an ornithologist Nye will not take a back seat with any one. Ornithology, he says, in beginning his article, is the methodical study and consequent knowledge of birds, with all that relates to them, and then he enters into a detailed history of ornithology.

"Looking over the history of science, and ornithology especially," he says, "it would seem that I am about the only scientist who has not written on this subject. I shall divide birds into two great classes, viz: First, those which sit up late at night second, those which do not. Each of these classes, of course, may be again divided and subdivided into waders, scratchers, squakers, etc and from this Nye starts off onto the buzzard, confining himself to his subject about as well as he generally does.

No less humorous, and yet written in a different vein altogether, is the article of M. Quad on "Mrs. Gallup is Going." The woman had heard the rooster crow three times. This she interpreted as a sign of death, and turning to her husband, she said: "Samuel, you know what that means, don't you? Mebbe you didn't hear it, but I did," she continued. "Yes, I heard a rooster crow three times and you know what that means. When a rooster crows at sundown it means there's goin' to be a death in the family within a month. Samuel Gallup, one or t'other of us is going' to expire before we are a month older." And then M. Quad goes on and tells his story, but if the reader desires to know whether Mrs. Gallup died or not, he or she will have to read tomorrow's SENTINEL.

The war between China and Japan is the topic of the hour, and for this reason THE SENTINEL will tomorrow give a brief history of the troubles which have caused these two nations to take up arms against each other. The Asiatic peninsula called Korea, which China and Japan seem to think a good enough bone to fight over just now, is a little tongue of land of only 90,000 square miles, but notwithstanding its limited size its population numbers 16,000,000. In the article tomorrow we will publish a map showing the relative positions of the three nations and will also give a history of Korea and a description of her resources and her history. The article will be interesting and timely and should be read by all who desire to be posted about this foreign war which is now attracting so much attention all over the world.

A great deal more than the usual amount of attention has been bestowed of late upon the sleeping car because of the strike of the Pullman employes and the sympathy uprising that followed among the railroad men late in June and interferred with travel and transportation through the first half of July. The facts in the early history of the sleeping car are not easy to obtain to a certainty because almost every printed account of the invention varries essentially from every other one, but it appears that the idea originated with John H. Morrison, of Detroit, in 1859, and afterwards taken up by Thomas F. Woodruff Webster Wagner and George M. Pullman took it where Woodruff dropped it, brought the sleeping car to its present perfection, and made fortunes for themselves. Tomorrow's SENTINEL will publish an article giving all the details about the history of the sleeping car and the perfection to which they have been brought.

The man of all others who has done the most toward bringing about a settlement of the difficulties between labor and capital in Colorado is E. T. Jeffrey, the president of the Denver and Rio Grande railroad. In these times, when the struggle between employer and employee is so fierce and the controversy so heated, it is interesting to note the attitude of this man, who, occupying so high a position, can yet sympathize with the feelings of the workingman. Perhaps it is because this railroad magnate was once a humble employee that he enters so fully into their sorrows and appreciates their conditions so thoroughly. Tomorrow THE SENTINEL will use an article telling of the career of Mr. Jeffrey and it will be interesting to every railroad man and other readers.

Twenty-three Stories High.

An architect says there is no reason, except limit of elevator power, why houses should not be built 1,000 feet high. As it is, no elevator at present devised can travel higher than 400 feet at most. So if we went up 1,000 feet we would have to change cars, so to speak, two or three times. There is under construction at New York city a building 23 stories in height. It is a source of satisfaction to New Yorkers that this will be taller than the famous Masonic temple at Chicago. Four other structures of equal height are now going up in various parts of New York city, and one of 30 stories has been planned for a plot of ground near the foot of Broadway.

The man who discovered that an iron frame was better than a stone or brick wall to give strength to a house was the man that made the modern skyscraping structure possible. That was only 10 years ago, yet later builders have already improved on the original idea. The frame is now made of steel instead of iron, rendering it stronger still. Now that they have begun there is no telling where the tower houses will stop. The lower floors of such houses will, however, be dark as Egypt if they are near to any other buildings.

The bill Mr. Harter of Ohio introduced into the national house while it was waiting for the senate to untie itself provides that all existing tariff duties shall be reduced one-half by Sept. 1, 1894, unless such reduction brings them below 20 per cent ad valorem, in which case Harter fixes special duties. His idea is to place a 20 per cent ad valorem tax on articles now paying a higher rate than that. After Sept. 1, 1894, he would have a uniform duty of 1 cent a pound levied on all sugars and molasses having 100 degrees of saccharine strength, with a proportionally lower rate for sugars and molasses not up to full strength. He would put a uniform duty of 4 cents a pound on coffee and 8 cents a pound on tea. The internal revenue tax on beer and all liquors he would make $2 a barrel. After Sept. 1, 1890, his bill would reduce all customs duties to 12 per cent. He says this is a compromise bill, which is what is wanted, and if adopted it will give us a surplus revenue every year from the beginning. Mr. Harter's bill has one merit, at any rate—we can understand it.

This summer a number of people have made the passage to Europe for $10. They went in the steerage, it is true, but that was better than not going at all. The low price was the result of a steamer line rate war.

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

A CHOICE OF MARTHA WASHINGTON OR 1830 STYLES.

During Dog Days the Designers Put Forth Feelers For the Fall Trade—Some of Their Proposed Innovations—Popular Wedding Presents.

[Copyright, 1894, by American Press Association.]

Fashion takes a rest in the dog days and leaves her devotees to feed upon the bits that are built up either to suit one or another private demand or put forward as feelers for the fall trade. These designs are presented not so much as real fashions as to see how far the designers may go in producing innovations. No one can tell which one may gain popular favor, as often a new style that was put forward with hesitation has been the season's favorite.

Just now we are shown several very different plans, as we may call them. One is the 1830, with magnified berthas, another a sort of Martha Washington outfit, having, however, been pruned and shaped to fit in with the present day. The principal part of this style is the waist, its snowy mull tucker and its lifted overdress. The underskirt or petticoat is not quilted, but is of silk of darker color and heavier texture than that in the overdress. The sleeves to this sort of overdress should be close on the upper part and flowing at the bottom, but the modern modiste thinks she can improve upon that by making great gigot sleeves and perhaps a bertha which shows under the dainty muslin tucker.

MODIFIED 1830 FASHIONS FOR TODAY.

Then poor Marie Antoinette has her memory revived by several little touches, but none of the fancies for fall show such bold strokes as the 1830 modes. These are not portrayed by any wavering, uncertain lines. They are what they call themselves, pure and simple, and I think they will have a strong support. We cannot complain, for it is many a long year since we had a mode so universally becoming, and, above all, so adaptable to all requirements.

It is only when we see a genuine 1830 gown disfigured by the owner wearing a square box coat above it or overloading it with cheap tawdry trimming that we fall to abusing it. These dresses are pretty, the cloaks belonging to them are stately, and the small capes and other addenda in keeping, and therefore making a refined costume. But we could dispense with the close bonnet without tears.

I fear we shall have to endure cottage bonnets the coming season. Those shown us now are but the entering wedge. Our grandmothers wore them, and they all looked pretty in them, so I suppose we will become reconciled. It is the face under the bonnet more than the bonnet over the face that is beautiful.

It was thought by many that draped overskirts and polonaises were to become universal, but while one or the other is seen occasionally the skirts are either quite plain or trimmed in decidedly ancient style with narrow garniture, mostly depending upon the fineness of the needlework for its success.

A few gowns intended to please those who like to have something following but not leading the fashion are shown. One of this style of dresses was made of drab and brown mottled silk barege, the waist plain spencer, slightly draped across the bust from the shoulder to the throat. There was a broad girdle of chestnut brown pongee, with a gilt buckle. The sleeves were double puffed. The skirt was fitted to the figure around the hips and down to the knees, where it was held up in three or four gathers under brown pongee rosettes. At intervals all around the skirt fan plaits of pongee were let in.

Another pretty dress for a young lady was made quite a novelty by the ingenious use of material. The dress itself had pale blue mousseline delaine as foundation, and the plaited portion of the skirt was made of that and the lower part of the waist. The upper part of the skirt, the square bertha and elbow sleeves were of silver gray taffeta. There was a row of valenciennes 6 inches wide where the upper and lower portion of the skirt joined, headed by a box plaiting of gray ribbon. Around the bertha there was a frill of lace 4 inches wide, headed the same way. The sleeves ended at the elbow under lace frills, and a narrow ribbon belt ended in a four looped bow at the left side. The whole design was a model of dainty grace.

NOVELTIES IN SUMMER GOWNS.

Among the modified 1830 dresses I chose two for mention as types which women will do well to follow, as they have every essential which entitles a lady to the renown of a "good dresser." One of them was striped damis, the groundwork slate gray, with black and pale green stripes. The skirt was round and gathered everywhere except the front breadth, which had a wrinkled drapery across it. The sleeves were decided gigots, made of the skirt material. The rest of the waist was made of all over embroidery done in dark red and green upon an ivory ground. The waist was frilled at the neck and gathered to a point in front. There was a narrow polka added to the waist, forming a basque, and a very prettily draped bertha, with a jabot of the same reaching to the waist point, and both made of pongee deeply scalloped and embroidered to match the rest. This bertha was made full on the shoulders, and where it was turned in the gathers formed an upright little puff that looked very cute and pretty.

The other gown was of hairline novelty, drab and brown. This skirt was also cut round and gathered full to the waist, with a wrinkled front drapery. Down one side was a black velvet ribbon, with a three looped bow set near the bottom. The waist was round and had a corselet made of three rows of black velvet ribbon. The sleeves have medium sized puffs, each having three lines of ribbon down the outside, and black velvet ribbon also formed bretelles, having bows on the shoulder. The front was filled in with a vest of drab crepe de chine. Nothing could be more genteel and refined, and yet it is quite in the fashion and will be at least until winter has coldly decided upon our destiny.

Change is necessary to our existence, it would seem, and everything has to give place to something else. Our houses are built in a different style from that of 20 years ago. Our furniture is different. Carpets go out of style with periodical regularity, like our hats. Dishes are made square, round or oblong, as fashion dictates, and our napery must go through the same phases. Once we ate with two tined forks, and then three and four tined ones took their places. Now we have three tined ones for clams, and two tined for berries, and four for potatoes, and are expected to go through several other gymnastic feats before we finish our dinner, and it sometimes surprises me to notice how much quicker a woman learns a new fad than her husband does. These philosophic observations were called forth by the sight of a lot of wedding presents, nearly all of which represented new devices unknown five years ago, but now they are the fashion. The berry forks are two tined just now, and to eat a berry with one of three tines would argue you among the great unwashed, who rarely get any berries anyhow. These foolish little things, made of gold, silver or enamel, cost from $9 to $48 a dozen. The newest have enameled handles.

Then there are butter spreaders in silver, and they cost from $12 to $56 a dozen. It is not the fashion to put butter on your bread with your table knife. There are fancy silver and gold ice tongs, some of them having a spoon on one end and the clawlike tongs on the other end, and they have resolved another question as to how to spend money in useless things while millions are starving. There are silver cake and bread knives, with steel serrated edges. These are certainly useful, but you can get one that will cut just as well for $1, and these cost $20 apiece if fine. There are salad spoons and forks, tea balls and tea bottles and asparagus holders or tongs, and, in fact, too many things to remember today. I may say that just now round dishes are the fashion, and also opaline glasses with flecks of color and the metallic lights showing through the milky glass. They are pretty, but clear crystal is more refined.

For some unexplained reason coarse linen in various weaves has suddenly taken an unusual prominence for all kinds of knockabout frocks. The ecru made up with dark blue, pink and old rose is certainly pretty. The linen hopsack and duck make very durable gowns, and they wash beautifully. I notice some of the latest of these made with Bulgarian embroidery in fast colors around the bottom and on the jacket or blazer or waist. Feather stitchings in different colors are also often seen around the skirt, and one white linen duck gown had an elaborate pattern braided upon it in narrow black soutache. This was very effective and stylish. Braiding always was pretty, and we shall see much of it during the coming season, though in most instances it will be picked out with beads.

NEW SKIRT AND FANCY APRON.

I saw a pattern gown in an establishment, a day or so ago, where there was a long Eton jacket made of black cloth, with a figaro outlined upon it by a braiding of gold soutache. I cannot say that I thought it in very refined taste, but it certainly was very novel and striking. It was to go with a black cloth suit, and across the front at the bottom there was to be a narrow pattern of the same style of braiding when the gown was completed.

The prospect now for the new colors is that they will be rich and dark, the plum, prune, wine and maroon shades all having a tint hitherto unknown, which makes these colors more than beautiful. The browns have a gloss and sheen like nothing that has yet been achieved in that color, reminding one of the warm polish on chestnuts and hazel nuts. They are not metallic, but glossy, like nuts or leaves. Brown, from the palest biscuit on up through the whole tribe of tans and mordores to seal, will be a leading color, though those mentioned above and the greens will also be popular. Robin's egg blue is seen even in the broadcloths and will doubtless be much worn, as that is a very becoming shade, particularly to brunettes.

I must mention a dainty apron for home wear which is not only pretty, but serviceable and sensible. The apron is a yard long and 1½ yards around and made of blue and white striped linen. A bias band of the same 2 inches wide is stitched two inches from the bottom, and it is gathered to a belt which ends in long hemmed ends in the back. There is a front which has a low vest plaiting of dark blue linen, and this flares open in the center below the waist line. There are bretelles edged with Russian embroidery around the top and short caps on the shoulders. A row of blue and white embroidery lies flat along the edges of the bretelles, and these cross in the back like simple suspenders. The whole apron is worth consideration. Shortened it would be pretty for children. At the same store I took note of a new petticoat of jaconet, with four rows of lace insertion above three tucked ruffles of sheer lawn, edged with lace. The lower ruffle had two rows of lace. It cost $18, but was delicious.

MATE LEROY.

Only One Could Do It.

"Last Sunday," said the clergyman to his congregation, "some one put a button in the collection bag. I won't mention names. I will merely say that only one individual in the congregation could have done so, and I will expect the same member after the service to replace the button with a coin of the realm."

After church a well to do but close fisted individual sought an interview with the clergyman in the vestry.

"I—er," he began hesitatingly, "must apologize for the—er—button incident, which I can assure you was an accident. I happened to have the button in my waistcoat pocket, together with a shilling, and took out the former by mistake. However, sir, here is the shilling."

"Thank you," said the clergyman, taking the shilling and gravely handing him the button.

"By the bye, sir," said the man, "I cannot understand how you should have known that it was I who—er—committed the—er—much to be regretted mistake."

"I didn't know," replied the clergyman.

"Didn't know! But you said, sir, that only one individual in the congregation could have done so."

"Just so. You see, sir, it is scarcely possible that two individuals could have put one button in the bag, is it now?" said the clergyman, with a bland smile.

It was so much easier for the button contributor to say "good day" than to answer this puzzling question that he made his bow at once.—Christian Advocate.

Where There Are No Odors.

"In that country once known as the 'Great American desert,' embracing a portion of Texas and Arizona, there are no odors," said R. P. Senter of Dallas. "There luscious grapes and many other fruits grow, especially near the cross timber country, but there is no perfume. Wild flowers have no smell, and carcasses of dead animals, which in dry seasons are very plentiful, emit no odors. It was always supposed to be a treeless plain, upon which no plant could grow or breathing thing could live, but a large part of it is now successfully cultivated, and but for the rarity of the atmosphere, causing the peculiarity I have named and the mirages, which are even more perfect than in the desert of Sahara, no one would look upon it as a barren country now. Another singular feature common to the desert land is that objects at a distance appear greatly magnified. A few scraggy mesquite bushes will look like a noble forest. Stakes driven into the ground will seem like telegraph poles."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Metropolitan Traction company some time ago offered a $50,000 prize for the best method of propulsion for street cars. It is now announced by the New York state railroad commissioners that the offer has been withdrawn.

Sad Condition of a Nickel Plate Employe.

Dying From the Effects of a Slight Accident Which Happened Two Weeks Ago—Casualties.

About two weeks ago Levi Potter, of No. 359 West Main street, this city, while engaged in his duties as switchman for the Nickel Plate railroad, accidently scratched his left knee. The wound was slight and Mr. Potter did not pay much attention to it for a day or so. It grew worse, however, and became so swollen and sore that Potter was confined to his bed. He has grown steadily worse and yesterday Drs. Stemen opened the wound and dressed it. Had the patient not been so ill they would have amputated the limb. There is but little hope of the man recovering. In fact the doctors have given him up. Mr. Potter is married and about thirty-five years of age. He is a new employe on the road.

FOOT MASHED.

F. Schophorst, a carpenter for the Pennsylvania company, living at No 103 West Third street, had his foot badly mashed at the east yards yesterday. Dr. George C. Stemen attended.

FINGER MASHED.

H. Horstman, a laborer in the east car shops, had the index finger of his right hand mashed this morning. He lives at 203 Hanna street.

THUMB BROKEN.

James Butler, a barber, is suffering from a broken thumb, the result of getting off a moving street car.

A trolly wire near the corner of Main and Calhoun street broke yesterday afternoon and hung down dangerously near the pavement for a few moments. Street Railway employes were very prompt, however, in repairing the break.

While pitching a ball in the yard at the government building Capt. Tom Blair yesterday afternoon broke his right arm. In drawing back his arm, the muscles in some way became twisted and as the ball left his hand the bone of the upper arm snapped. The fracture was reduced by Dr. H. A. Duemling and Capt. Blair was removed to his home, 220 East Wayne street.

LONG-LIVED INDIANIANS.

Lewis H. Morgan and Wife Have Been Married Over Seventy Years.

COLUMBUS, Ind., Aug. 3—At Henryville, Clark county, resides a couple who have been married over seventy years. Lewis H. Morgan married Elizabeth Freeman when they were eighteen and sixteen years respectively. Grandma Cross, as everyone calls her, is past ninety-eight, and lives with her son, Wesley, who is seventy-six, and often remarks, "mammy will outlive me yet." The old lady is remarkably well preserved, and only a short time since she declared she had "not an ache nor a pain." Last winter she fell from a step and broke an arm below the elbow and the local physicians advised amputation as the only thing to save her, but she would not hear of it and had the arm put in a plaster of paris mold and the bones firmly united.

Samuel Williams, another resident was born January 7, 1799, and is now past ninety-five. His desire is to live until 1900, so it can be said, "he lived in three centuries." There are a number of other old settlers and when they have a "meeting" an extra large platform is erected for their accommodation. Prominently among them may be mentioned Rev. Seymour Guernsey, aged eighty-three; Patrick Plunket, aged eighty-five; "General" Taylor, about eighty-seven, and Colonel J. F Willey and wife, about eighty-five Emily Biggs, who died three monts ago, was ninety-three. Her husband, Abner Biggs, died five or six years ago, aged about ninety.

PLAYED FAKER AND MUST DIE.

R. Jeffries Saturates His Hair With Oil, Lights It and is Fatally Burned.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind, Aug. 3—An accident occurred to Robert Jeffries yesterday which will prove fatal. A few days ago a street faker was in town selling soap and attracted crowds to his wagon by making believe that he anointed himself with coal oil and set fire to it. Some of the boys in the city conceived the idea that they would start in the show business, and they all began learning tricks for their respective parts. Young Jeffries kept his part a secret from the rest until the show opened, when he played it with a startling and tragic end. Jeffries had secured a cup of coal oil from his mother, with which he saturated his hair and neck, then telling the boys to keep their eyes on him and watch that everything was as he claimed it to be, struck a match and applied it to the oil, which was to burn off, leaving his hair uninjured. No sooner had the blaze touched his hair than he was enveloped in one mass of fire. His cries of agony so frightened his companions that they fled, leaving him to his fate and to fight the fire alone. Neighbors being attracted to the scene went to his rescue and extinguished the flames. He was badly burned and inhaled so much of the fire that he cannot recover.

No Truth in the Story.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—The Brazilian legation in this city says that there is no truth in the story cabled from Buenos Ayres, on August 1, to the effect that 3,000 insurgent troops are marching upon Porto Alegro, the capital of the state of Rio Grande Do Sul. The legation officials say that, on the contrary, insurgents are fleeing before the government troops.

Lobbyist Gets Five Years.

Paris, Aug. 3.—Dr. Cornelius Herz, the Panama lobbyist, was sentenced in Contumaciam today to five years' imprisonment and to pay a fine of 3,000 francs.

Indians Killing Deers.

DENVER, Col., Aug. 3—Game Warden Callicott, has been notified that, as usual at this season of the year, a band of 100 Navajos from Utah are ruthlessly slaughtering deer for their hides in the western part of Montrose county. As the Indians are off their reservations they are subject to civil law and deputies have been sent to arrest them.

CROPS IN GREAT DANGER

Protracted Drought Has About Destroyed All Prospect for Corn.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 3.—Southern and central Indiana are in the midst of a protracted drought, and the injury to the growing corn is so pronounced that it is causing much concern to the farmers. The field corn, which was planted late owing to wet weather in the spring, is just beginning to silk, and unless copious rains fall within a few days no ear will be formed on the stalk. The blades in many sections are withering under the influence of the heat and on high land the stalks have begun to tassel though hardly waist high. It is believed that the corn planted in a clay soil will be an entire failure, and only good rains can save that in the low or bottom lands. In many sections the meadows have been completely burned out and the farmers have despaired of securing the usual second crop of clover. Grass is very scarce in all sections of the state, and the price of dairy products is gradually advancing to winter figures. In some parts of the state there has been no rainfall of consequence for six weeks, and where this is the case the potato as well as the corn crop will be very short.

Eureka!

Mr. Thomas Batte, editor of the Graphic, Texarkana, Arkansas, has found what he believes to be the best remedy in existence for the flux. His experience is well worth remembering. He says: "Last summer I had a very severe attack of flux. I tried almost every known remedy, none giving relief. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was recommended to me. I purchased a bottle and received almost immediate relief. I continued to use the medicine and was entirely cured. I take pleasure in recommending this remedy to any person suffering with such a disease, as in my opinion it is the best medicine in existence" 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by druggists.

A BAD WRECK.

Tramps Explode an Oil Tank Car at Bucyrus.

One of the Tourists and Eight Cars Consumed by the Flames—The Road Blocked.

The death of one man and possible three or four others and the destruction of eight cars and 400 feet of railway track is the result of the careless use of matches by tramps on a train. The ill-fated train was the west bound Pittsburg freight, No. 73, the scene of the accident Bucyrus, Ohio, and the hour 4 o'clock this morning. When the train stopped at the crossing of the Ohio Central road and just as the engineer was about to pull ahead a terrific explosion occurred in the middle of the string of cars and sheets of fire shot into the air and spread over the train and along the tracks. A tank car, filled with coal oil or gasoline, had exploded, presumably from a match in the hands of a tramp. The fluid was a mass of flames in an instant. The shock of the explosion broke the connection of the front end of the train with the exploded tank car and the engineer pulled up out of reach of the flames. The fire spread rapidly to the rear, however, and before an engine could hook onto the caboose five cars loaded with coal, two with ties and two empties were burning. The alarm was sounded, but for some reason the Bucyrus fire department failed to respond. A call was then made upon Mansfield and Crestline and the fire departments from those cities soon had engines and men on the scene. They came too late, however, to save the cars and their cargoes, and at noon today a dispatch received at Superintendent Law's office stated that the five coal and two tie cars were entirely consumed and two box cars were still burning. The message also stated that the dead body of one of the tramps, a negro, had been taken from the wreck. Other tramps who were known to have been on the train are missing and it is possible that some of them were caught in the wreck and killed by the explosion and their bodies consumed. The dead negro was not burned badly and it is thought he was killed by the shock of the explosion.

About 400 feet of track was destroyed, the ties being burned completely and the rails twisted and bent beyond repair. The road is blockaded and passenger trains are running around the scene by way of Martell, over the Ohio Central and the Big Four roads.

The wrecked train was in charge of Conductor Thomas M. Hall, with Engineer Hedges at the throttle. An Associated Press dispatch from Bucyrus, sent out early this morning, states that the train broke in two and the collision of the two sections was the cause of the disaster. This is far from the truth, as both the conductor and engineer say that there was no noticeable jar to the train when it stopped for the crossing, and that the explosion did not occur until the train had started forward again. The wreck is a costly one, and being due to the carelessness of tramps, is much more aggravating to the officials than if it had occurred from other causes

RAILROADS REFUSE TO PAY.

It now develops that the railroads after having received the protection of the United States courts during the late strike now refuse to pay for the benefits received. A telegram from Indianapolis says: "The notice of the federal clerk of the courts to the various railroad companies in Indiana to appear and pay the costs of the several injunctions issued at their demand against the strikers has developed the fact that the roads intend to resist the payment of the costs. They were charged for copies of the restraining orders but say that these were part of a proceeding for the benefit and protection of the United States and that no part of the expense can be lawfully charged to them."

A PHANTOM ENGINE.

"It was back in the 70's," said a veteran Lake Shore engineer, "when I ran a pusher on the Union Pacific that this story of a phantom locomotive was told. The engine was used to assist the trains up between Laramie and the summit of Sherman hill.

"I was in charge of an engine pulling the regular passenger train up the hill one gray morning. Just as we neared the snowshed that used to stand at Harvey siding an engine suddenly popped out in front of us. Before I had time to even get a square look at her she disappeared in the shed and was lost to view. The whole thing happened so suddenly that I was dumbfounded, but I was positive I had seen an engine, and so was my fireman. I at once shut off and the train came to a standstill. The conductor came over and asked what was the matter. 'Bill,' said I, 'I just saw an engine pop out of that snowshed and just as suddenly disappear again.'

"'Are you positive?' said the knight of the punch, and he peered up the track, and I asserted I was. 'We had better move on, anyhow, and if you see one it will probably keep out of our way.'

"So we proceeded up the hill, keeping careful watch for the mysterious engine which made my heart jump into my throat as she emerged from that snowshed. The siding reached, but there was no sign of an engine threatening us with a head end collision. The trainmen laughed at me and said I must have seen a spirit. Had it not been for the fact that my fireman sided with me I don't know but that I should have given up and admitted that I was mistaken.

"A careful watch failed to reveal any sign of the stray engine, and when we stopped at Sherman all the trainmen had a hearty laugh at my expense. But I was still positive and insisted on making a hunt, and we found an engine hid away in the little roundhouse located at that point.

"The engineer was a man named Jordan. He had overlooked a new time card and had started to take his engine back to Laramie after helping a freight up the summit. He could see the head light of our engine before he emerged from the snowshed. This accounted for his sudden disappearance. His engine was almost stopped when he came out, and it did not take long to get to going back up the hill again at a lively rate. The engineer thought we did not see him and he would just hide in the roundhouse at Sherman and no one would be the wiser for his escapade.

"We did not report him, but the officials learned of the incident in some manner and his head went into the basket"

MINOR MENTION.

Road Foreman of Engineers John Ross, of the Wabash, was in the city this morning.

Thomas Prichard, jr., apprentice in the Bass machine shop, has resumed work after a couple days' illness.

Henry Danmeyer, Henry Dreyer and A. Rauner, of the Pittsburg blacksmith shop, are off duty today on account of sickness.

M. Stark, of the Pittsburg planing mills, is the only one on the absentee list today. He is looking after some private business.

A. Rost and George Haverly, of the Pittsburg blacksmith shop, have gone up into Michigan to spend a few days in piscatorial pleasures

Every railroad leading into the city brought in immense crowds of country people today. The attraction is the Barnum & Bailey circus.

The Barnum & Bailey show came in over the Pittsburg and will leave over the Wabash tonight after the performance. It exhibits in Toledo tomorrow.

The Wabash company is erecting a new telegraph office in the Peru yards in order to facilitate the meat traffic. The office will be open both day and night.

Mesdames Paul and James H. Hanley, wives of the Pittsburg employer, left this morning for Grand Rapids, where they expect to visit relatives a few weeks.

Charles Lessington, formerly of the Pittsburg freight house and later night clerk at the Randall hotel, has taken a clerical position in the Nickel Plate freight offices

Ed. Belding has resigned his position at the electric light works and gone to Wellsville, Ohio, to assume the management of the Citizens' Electric Light company's plant.

Ten sisters of charity, who had been spending their summer vacation here, left over the Wabash this morning for their respective homes, five going to Quincy, Ill., and five to East St. Louis

The Pennsylvania railroad is having a wall map 115 feet long and fifteen feet high, showing the Pennsylvania system's lines and connections, prepared for the waiting room in the Philadelphia station.

Foreman T. J. Rodabaugh, of the Pittsburg paint shop, received a telegram from Marinette, Wis., stating that his brother, Sweley Rodabaugh, died suddenly in that city. Mr. Rodabaugh left last night for Wisconsin.

John Stevenson, who has been here inspecting the large engine now in course of erection at the Bass works, returned to his home in New Castle, Pa., last night. He is well pleased with the manner of construction of the engine

The Wabash came in for a fair share of the Niagara Falls excursion business, although the company did not decide to sell tickets until two days previous to the date of the excursion. Fifty-seven tickets were sold by Agent Thompson

A small fire in the pattern shop of the Wabash, near the round house, created considerable excitement at 8:30 o'clock this morning. The fire department was called out, but their services were not needed. The fire was extinguished by the shopmen.

Of the fifty-four railroads in Ohio only nineteen have thus far paid the excise tax (under the McMahon law) for the support of the railroad commissioner's department. Tuesday was the last day for payment without the penalty of $1,000 lump fine and $25 per day for each day of delinquency.

Thomas Shepherd, the old Pittsburg boilermaker, is lying very ill. He is over eighty years old and has been on the retired list for two or three years. David Andrews, another veteran of the same shop, who is very ill, is resting easier today. He is in a critical condition, however, and his friends fear he is beyond recovery.

Mrs. John Kelley, wife of the well known Pittsburg boilermaker, and her daughter went to Grand Rapids last night for a few weeks' visit with friends. Mr. Kelley, who has been off duty for the past eight months with a crippled limb, is so much improved that he is seriously considering the question of resuming work.

Passenger Agent R. G. Thompson, of the Wabash, is kept pretty busy nowadays answering inquiries concerning the Put-in Bay excursion, which takes place Sunday, August 12. Indications point to an immense excursion party from this city on that day. The train will start from Andrews at 5.12 in the morning and from this city at 6, reaching Toledo at 9 o'clock and Put-in-Bay at 12 30 o'clock.

Applications for work in shops and on the road have been so numerous that the officers whose duty it is to employ this kind of help have in many cases posted huge placards notifying applicants that no help of any sort is needed; all of which shows that a very large precentage of the mechanics and laboring men of the country are out of employment, and forbodes a hard winter for wage earners.

The advertisements of telegraph schools guaranteeing steady employment at good wages to its graduates is offset by the advertisement of the same institutions, and often in the same papers, to agents and operators, which in substance is as follows: "To agents and operators needing assistance I can send good steady men, well advanced in telegraphy, who will be willing to assist about the office in return for the privilege of getting main line practice and have your assistance to a situation after becoming competent. To agents needing helpers receiving a small salary we will give $5 to take our students."

It is expected that the new union passenger station at St. Louis will be opened for regular traffic by the first of next month. President Taussig, of the Terminal Railway association, and General Manager Ramsay are already established beneath its roof and are personally pushing matters as fast as due regard for excellence of work will permit. The train sheds will cover thirty-two parallel tracks. The baggage room, three hundred feet long, is completed, and the gates leading from the esplanade to the platforms are in position. The waiting room, it is claimed, will far surpass in elegance of finish and furnishing and in conveniences anything of the sort in the world.

40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

LAST NIGHT'S FIRE.

A Fierce Blaze Located in a Very Dangerous Place—Fire Lads Do Good Work.

Last night about 11 o clock a dangerous fire was discovered in the old brick building occupied by Miller Bros, rag dealers, and located adjacent to the Nickel Plate tracks and just west of the Calhoun street crossing. The fire evidently originated from spontaneous combustion in a bale of rags. The entire department was called out and handled the dangerous fire in a splendid manner. The lack of street lights and the dense, stifling smoke from the burning rags made it difficult to handle the fire. However, the burning building was fairly flooded with water and the fierce blaze literally drowned out. The fire was in a bad place to spread and had it done so would have swept the whole block

The approximate damage and insurance is as follows: The building on the corner of Calhoun and Columbia streets, owned and occupied by William Dreier & Bro, to stock and building, $1,000; insurance, $15 000. The building adjoining Dreier & Bro on the north, owned by E. Weisser, and occupied by Isaac Weil & Co, damage to building and stock, $500, covered by insurance. Damage to building occupied by the Fort Wayne Beef company and owned by Mrs. Mary Smith, of this city, $500; insured. The building owned and occupied by H. N. Ward, No 8 East Columbia street, damage to stock, $1,000, insurance, $8 000, to building, $500, insurance, $1 000. The building which was totally destroyed was owned by W. W. Case, formerly of this city, now of Denver, Col. Loss, $15,000; small insurance. This is the third bad fire in this place. The loss on stock to Miller Bros will amount to $2 000. Amount of insurance is very small. The fire was rung out at 3 o'clock.

The cellar of Dreier Bros. had five feet of water in it when the fire was rung out. The estimated losses by the fire were greatly exagerated this morning. Dr. Seaton's office was not damaged.

DUG HIS OWN GRAVE.

Edward Walker Attempts Suicide in a Cemetery.

ARLINGTON, Mass, Aug 3—Late last night the superintendent of a Catholic cemetery, near Cambridge Line, discovered a new made mound of earth in an unauthorized place. Upon investigation he found a shallow hole, with a man lying in it in an unconscious state A bouquet of flowers lay upon his breast and a half filled bottle of laudanum lay beside him. He was alive, and after three hours hard work was restored to consciousness. It was ascertained that his name is Edward Walker, twenty-seven years of age, living on Brattle street, Cambridge. He has been considered a young man of great promise and has shown marked ability as a designer of humorous pictures for the illustrated papers. About two years ago he was dangerously ill from typhoid fever. While be was recovering from this attack his intended wife died. The sad news was broken to him before he had fully recovered his strength, and it is thought his mind has not been right since that time. Walker dug the grave himself.

Killed His Wife.

OUR MINISTER TO KOREA

John M. B. Sill of Michigan and the Important Work He Has Before Him.

Now that the United States has offered her services as mediator to settle the differences between Japan and Korea Hon. John M B Sill, United States minister to Korea, attracts considerable attention as the representative of Uncle Sam at the scene of the imbroglio. Mr Sill was nominated to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Korea on Jan. 8 of the present year. He is a Michigan appointee and has for years been one of the best known men in the state's educational circles.

He was born in Erie county, N. Y., Nov. 23, 1831, and began life by teaching a country school in Hillsdale county, Mich., when he was but 18 years of age. In 1853 he entered the Michigan State Normal school and enjoyed the honor of being the first male graduate the following year. His ability was so greatly admired at the school that he was at once engaged as professor of English, and in 1858 and 1859 he acted as principal.

MINISTER J. M. B. SILL.

In 1863 Mr. Sill became the first superintendent of Detroit's public schools and served two years. He then resigned to accept the presidency of the Detroit Female seminary. After 10 years of hard work he again became superintendent of the public schools of Detroit. In 1886 he returned to the post of principal in the Michigan State Normal school, a position he retained until 1893.

He has published several well known educational works, has taken the orders of the Episcopalian church. He is short and stout, looks like a cleric, bears his 63 years with becoming dignity and is a thorough scholar and gentleman. He is a strong willed, determined man and an able opponent in controversy. In addition to the offices already mentioned Mr Sill was president of the Michigan State Teachers' association in 1861 and 1862, a member of the Detroit board of education for two years and one of the board of regents of the University of Michigan from 1867 to 1869. He has long been interested in Korea and its people and was well informed about the strange country before he set foot upon its soil.

A New Remedy For Diphtheria.

A new remedy for diphtheria is being tried with success in New Zealand. It is very simple. Put five drops of sulphuric acid in a tumbler, given so the child can swallow it. If the throat is obstructed, give it with a teaspoon until the passage is cleared; then administer a wineglass every two hours. Burn sulphur in the room as strong as it can be borne.

HE SKIPPED OUT.

But He Had Good Reason For Not Waiting Any Longer.

He was worried as he sat there over the six little bundles that he carried. They would drop from his arms or roll from side to side. But, being chivalrous, as all men are, he arose when the lady in the white flannel dress entered the car and consigned his seat to her

Now, his bundles harassed him still more. His endeavors to keep them from dropping aroused his friend's amusement.

"Wife send you shopping?" he inquired.

"Oh, yes, but I don't mind that. All I'm afraid of is losing one of my bundles."

After the train had shot around the curve he began to count the parcels again.

"There, I knew it!" he cried in a tone of worriment. "I've lost one."

"Anything of value in it?" queried his friend solicitously.

The other paid no attention to the question. "One, two, three, four, five," he counted. "I had six, and here are five. One's gone," he observed gloomily.

"Can't you tell what it contained?"

"Wait. I'll see. This is spool cotton, this is braid, this is buttons, this is soap, and this is ink. O Lord!"

"What's up?" queried his friend.

The man with the bundles glanced about him nervously. "Sh!" he whispered. "Don't speak loud. I remember what was in the package I lost."

"What was it?"

"A couple of eggs. You see, my doctor has ordered me to drink sherry and egg every night. They haven't always fresh ones at home, so I make it a rule to bring a couple up with me. O Jerusalem, but I've done it now!" he groaned

"Why, what is the matter? Where did you drop the eggs?"

"Didn't drop 'em at all! But I know where I lost 'em. Great Scott! I get off at the next station."

"No, you don't. You live three stations beyond."

"Yes, but I leave this car at the next station if it takes a lung. I'm going to skip before war breaks out." He began to edge nearer the door

"Why are you so frightened?" insisted the friend

"You see that lady to whom I gave my seat?" whispered the other.

"Yes."

"She looks smiling and unconscious now, doesn't she?"

"Yes."

"Well, she is sitting on those eggs. I left the package on the seat."

The friend grinned. The man with the parcels bolted from the car as the train stopped.—New York Recorder.

Of Interest to Mothers.

The success of Miss Annie M. Beam, of McKeesport, Pennsylvania, in the treatment of diarrhoea in her children will undoubtedly be of interest to many mothers. She says. "I spent several weeks in Johnstown, Pa., after the great flood, on account of my husband being employed there. We had several children with us, two of whom took the diarrhoea very badly. I got some of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy from Rev. Mr. Chapman. It cured both of them. I knew of several other cases where it was equally successful. I think it cannot be excelled and cheerfully recommend it." 25c and 50c bottles for sale by druggists.

To The Editor:

Volume No. 5 of Harper War Book just came, and it surprised me greatly to find the large colored map. Accept thanks for your promptness. I thought the other parts couldn't be beat, but they seem to grow better. If others appreciate the value of what you are giving for only 10 cents, you must sell a host of them, for if anybody once sees these War Volumes they must be as much surprised as I have been at so much, and so good, for such a low price. You deserve a vote of thanks for what you are doing. The good done by placing this great Harper history of the civil war in reach of every man, woman and child cannot be calculated.

IT IS MAGNIFICENT.

The Princess Cash Store Opens Its Doors for Business.

One of the Finest and Most Conveniently Arranged Retail Business Houses in the City.

Last night at 6 o'clock the Princess Cash store, in the Trentman building at the corner of Calhoun and Washington streets, opened its doors for business and until a late hour it was thronged with visitors, who passed through the various departments of the big retail business house, admiring the convenience of its arrangements and the large and handsome stock of goods of every variety which was displayed on its shelves and counters.

The universal verdict of everyone was, "it is magnificent" and there words express in a brief sentence a description of the mammoth department store, for it is perfect in every detail of its arrangement and admirably adapted for supplying the wants and needs, in the mercantile, line of the public of Fort Wayne and the surrounding towns and cities, making it, in fact, one of the most finely equipped department stores in the west

THE SENTINEL a few days ago gave a detailed description of the building and the arrangement of the various departments, and last night, when lit up with electric lights, the mammoth room presented a most handsome appearance and was seen to advantage The store is everything that its name implies—a general store, and the purchaser can be supplied with almost every need without leaving the building. Groceries, provisions, fruits, candies, cigars and tobaccos, queensware, glassware, lamps, clocks, tinware, boots and shoes, dry goods, gents' furnishings and clothing—all have their separate and distinct departments, yet each one of the departments contains a complete stock and is in itself a veritable store.

Mr. A. C Angove, the enterprising proprietor, has surrounded himself with a large and efficient corps of clerks and the immense crowd which visited the store last night were nicely taken care of and shown through the different departments of the new building THE SENTINEL reporter, besides being shown through the store below was conducted to the upper floors, where the stock rooms are located, and these are filled with goods to replenish the stock below, two large elevators being in the rear part of the building for this purpose.

That this new and handsomely arranged department store will prove a popular favorite admits of no doubt Low prices and the best of goods will win and this Mr. Angove has made a study and a feature, as he buys in such large quantities that his discounts amount to an enormous figure, and the discounts he gives to his patrons, so that they can make a saving of 20 to 25 per cent. by purchasing at the "Princess."

To be brief, the new store which Mr. Angove has opened in our city is handsomely equipped in every respect and can supply the wants of the public and save them money. The Princess has already commenced to do a big business and the management authorizes THE SENTINEL to say that the public is invited to visit the store and inspect the arrangement and see the goods, whether they desire to purchase or not Everybody will be given a cordial greeting and will be treated pleasantly.

MUST DIE!

The Guillotine is Caserio's Fate.

Quick Punishment for Carnot's Murderer.

In Thirty Minutes the Jury Return a Verdict of Guilty.

His Trial Only Lasted Two Days.

The Judge Pronounces the Death Sentence.

The Assassin's Defiant Attitude in Court.

France Does Not Stand on Ceremony or Technicalities When Dealing With Anarchists.

LYONS, Aug. 3.—There were few people around the palace of justice when the trial of Santo Caserio, the assassin of President Carnot was resumed today. The court regulations and military guard were the same as yesterday.

The prisoner was escorted to the dock handcuffed to two gendarmes and with two gendarmes bringing up the rear. The prisoner seemed more defiant than yesterday, and took his seat with a mocking smile on his face.

Leblanc, the soldier who was fellow prisoner with Caserio at Marseilles, testified that Caserio told him that he intended to kill President Carnot, probably at Lyons when the chief magistrate visited that city.

"That is a lie," interrupted Caserio, excitedly. "I never told you or any one else anything about my plans."

Leblanc continued: "Caserio confided to me that he was designated by lot."

"That is untrue," shrieked Caserio.

"How untrue?" asked the soldier, turning to the prisoner. "I said to you, after you had made that remark, 'but, who would be so bold as to kill President Carnot? I saw him in Paris surrounded by troops and police.' You answered, 'he will be chosen by lot.'"

There was great excitement in court while the prisoner and Leblanc were speaking to each other. Later Leblanc said:

"Caserio told me that he had often seen King Humbert in the streets, but he added that to kill him it would be necessary to have a rifle and shoot him from the street, as he was surrounded by soldiers."

"That is a lie," shouted Caserio. "I was never chosen to kill President Carnot. Moreover, absolute liberty prevails among the anarchists."

The prosecuting attorney reviewed at length all the details of the trial and demanded that the jury should not hesitate to do its duty. M. Dubreuil, counsel for the defense, followed and made an appeal for the prisoner.

At the conclusion of the public prosecutor's speech there were visible signs of delight throughout the court room at the eloquent denunciation of anarchists, their doctrines and their wretched tool, Caserio, whose life, counsel insisted, the jury should render to justice, the law and the rightful demand of civilized society.

Caserio smiled with contempt during the public prosecutor's address and then, in common with all present, he paid close attention to the remarks of his counsel, M. Dubreuil, whose appeal for the prisoner lasted half an hour.

M. Dubreuil based his defense of the prisoner on three points: First, that there was lunacy in the prisoner's family. Second, his anarchist surroundings. Third, the impossibility of reconciling the assassin's religious life with a premeditated attempt at murder. Under the new law, the presiding judge prohibited the publication of the chief portion of M. Dubreuil's address.

At the conclusion of his counsel's remarks Caserio seemed pleased, and the jury rose amid a general movement of relief upon the part of the audience. When the jury went out there was considerable excited conversation, mingled with whispered speculation as to how long the jury would be out.

During the absence of the jury Caserio was removed to his cell beneath the court house, and the judge retired with his associates to await the return of the men who were to pronounce upon the prisoner's guilt. When, after an absence of less than thirty minutes, the jury re-entered, the judge resumed his place and for a moment dead silence reigned throughout the court.

Caserio was brought in and faced the court for the last time. Judge Breuil then turned to the prisoner for a moment, and then, addressing the jury, asked the latter the formal question.

"Is Caserio Santo Geronimo guilty or not guilty of the crime of assassinating the president of the republic?"

There was some confusion as the interpreter translated to the prisoner what was said, but audible over the interpreter's voice was the reply of the foreman of the jury

"Guilty without extenuating circumstances."

There was deep silence as the verdict was translated to Caserio, who received it with a smile of cynical contempt. The presiding judge, as soon as the prisoner was acquainted with the jury's finding, arose, and speaking directly to the assassin, said.

"The court condemns Caserio Santo Geronimo to death. You have three days in which to appeal to the court of cassation."

To this Caserio returned a scornful shout of "Vive la revolution social."

The anarchial cry was hardly out of his mouth when the gendarmes handcuffed to the prisoner, jerked him towards the door leading to the cells beneath the court. This door was opened hastily, Caserio was hurried through, and as he disappeared a feeble cry of "courage camarides; vive l'anarchie" was heard echoing from the stone corridor through which the assassin was being hurried.

By this time the presiding judge was bowing to his associates to the public prosecutor and to counsel for the defense; the audience began to disappear, the door through which Caserio had passed was shut with a loud clang, the door of the judge's room was opened, the public vanished, the clock pointed to a quarter of one, and all who saw the trial rushed out to tell the outer world of what they had seen and heard.

M. Dubruiel, the prisoner's counsel, gave notice of appeal, and in doing so asked that the presiding judge's charge to the jury, at the opening of the session, be entered on the records.

CATHOLIC TEMPERANCE.

The St. Paul Convention Endorses the Views of Satolli.

His Decision Will Crystallze the Influence of the Church Against the Saloon.

ST. PAUL, Minn., August 3.—The Catholic abstainers did not meet until after 10 o'clock today and at once began work on changes in the constitution. They hoped to finish up their work of the convention in one session, including the election of officers.

The resolutions adopted strongly endorsed the papal delegate's temperance views. They state that the union sees in the recent action of Bishop Watterson, which has been so nobly sustained by Mgr. Satolli, a long step in the right direction.

It is believed that this action will crystalize the influence of the church against the saloon, and will stamp this letter indelibly on the irreconcilable enemy of the church. The decision of the papal delegate cannot fail to give additional authority to the recommendation of the court of Baltimore, that all Catholic saloonkeepers abandon as soon as they can the dangerous traffic and embrace a more becoming way of making a living.

The decision will serve as a renewal of the invitation which our holy father, Leo XIII, has already addressed to all priests of the land to enter into the work of temperance reform. "And with the clergy strongly committed against the saloon, the day of vindication for the church in America will be near at hand. The scandal of a preponderating number of Catholics in the saloon business is a disgrace too long endured. Whatever the cause of the fact, a new day is at hand."

COLORED DEMOCRATS.

Indianapolis Expects a Large Attendance at the Convention.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug 3.—The colored democrats of this city are making extensive arrangements for the meeting of the National Democratic league, which will convene here about the middle of the month and hold a two days' session. Prominent members of the colored race who have recently affiliated with the democratic party are expected, and every state in the union, it is said, will be represented. Liberal subscriptions have been made to the fund for the entertainment of the delegates and those who visit the city on that occasion. Local colored democrats say that the meeting will be the largest gathering of colored democrats that has ever assembled, and that steps will be taken to perfect an organization in every state, if not in time for the present campaign at least in time for the tough organization before the presidential contest of 1896.

THE COLD WAVE.

Frosts Will Prevail in Wisconsin Tonight.

CHICAGO, Aug 3.—The weather bureau has ordered frost signals displayed throughout Wisconsin tonight and Prof. Moore, of the bureau predicts severe frosts in that state tonight. Last night broke the record for cool weather in the month of August in Chicago and serious damage to the crops in the northwest is feared.

Held Up a Stage.

TRUCKEE, Cala., Aug. 3.—A lone highwayman held up the Truckee and [illegible] stage at a point three miles from Truckee. There were fifteen passengers on board. When the stage was stopped the passengers were told to throw out their money, they did and contributed $270 to the highwayman.

THE END IS NEAR

For an Agreement Among the Leaders on the Tariff Bill.

Probability That the Measure Will be Reported Which Will Pass Both Houses and Become a Law.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Before the conferees began their session today, there seemed to be an impression among the leaders that an agreement would be reached in the near future.

The house conferees were especially encouraged with the progress made during the week, and said that a bill could be reported which would pass both houses and become a law.

One week ago the senate, after three days, sent the bill back to conference. The next day the conferees met. It was at this time that the house conferees were informed that the senate bill must be accepted without the dotting of an 'i' or the crossing of a 't.' This assertion was couched in more diplomatic language, however, but that was the effect of it.

Substantially, the spokesman of the senate conferees said to the members of the house:

"Gentlemen, the tariff bill has just escaped defeat by three tie votes and the fact that a former republican senator refrained from voting. Now you know the situation. It is a positive fact that the senate bill and no other can pass. It will be unsafe to trust it in the senate with any change whatever. The only way in which there can be any tariff legislation is for you, gentlemen, to take this bill and pass it."

The session was very short. The senate conferees announced to their colleagues that the house members said nothing. The house members held a short conference among themselves. No other meeting of the full conference was held until Monday. The interval gave the house conferees time to ascertain the sentiment of the house, and on Monday they announced that they were willing to confer and see if a compromise could not be reached, but would not accept the senate bill in its entirety, as had been insisted upon Saturday. They pointed out several defects in the senate bill. There was for the first time a wavering on the part of the senators who had stood behind what was known as the caucus bill.

Many democratic senators, not including those known as conservatives, said that the house was entitled to some consideration and that it never was the understanding that there should not be some concessions to the house. There were so many senators who were of the same opinion as the house conferees that they made themselves felt, and instead of adhering to the position of Saturday, viz: the senate bill in its entirety or no bill—the conference has proceeded with a view of adjusting differences and making concessions, corrections and changes. Neither side expects to get all it wants, but both senate and house conferees do expect a tariff bill.

It is true that the three main points of difference have not been adjusted, but they are in a fair way to be settled. From the start the sugar schedule has been the main point of difference; while the house by its vote made sugar free, its conferees have been persuaded to concede that a duty is necessary for revenue. The one-eighth differential in favor of refined sugar has been the obnoxious feature to the house, but it will probably be accepted, as the conferees think that the advantage to the refiners is concealed in the ad valorem rate. The difference between the price of raw sugar and refined, which will reduce the amount of duty to be levied can be manipulated by the trust to its great benefit, and the injury of the consumer and the revenue of the government. The senate conferees tell the house members to write the schedule so as to prevent any such manipulation and it will be acceptable if it retains the same duty and protection to the sugar interests contained in the senate bill.

It is this problem that has been engaging the conferees for a day or two and many propositions have been presented and rejected, but the opinion is expressed that it will finally be adjusted.

The other main points of difference, coal and iron ore, have also been the subject of more or less discussion, with but little success, as the points of compromise do not afford as much latitude as the sugar schedule. The fact that the democrats of the house generally do not care much about either of these questions save as to the principle involved, has given the senators reason to believe that they can hold them in the bill but the house conferees feel that they can adjust the matter by securing free coal, with a proviso that the senate rate, forty cents a ton, shall be imposed upon coal coming from those countries which refuse the free admission of coal produced in the United States. It is agreed that iron ore becomes less a matter of contention on both sides, and it is believed that it will not be allowed to stand in the way of a final agreement.

The tariff conference appears to have reached very nearly the point at which either an early agreement will be reached or a decision to report a disagreement. The senate conferees apparently have arrived at the conclusion that there has been already a sufficient exchange of views upon general lines, and that the time has come when the direct issue must be reached. It is stated that a sugar schedule has been prepared which the senate will accept and which is to be presented to the house members as the extreme limit to which the senate will go. The schedule, it is said, still provides a differential duty on refined sugar and in other particulars maintains the protective features of the senate schedule. Representative Bland has introduced a resolution instructing the committee on ways and means to report a bill placing all sugars on the free list and for raising $100,000,000 revenue by an income tax. Mr. Bland says concerning the resolution:

"I have not consulted Mr. Wilson or anyone else, but have acted on my own judgment in submitting the resolution. My purpose is to press it if there is an indication that the general tariff bill will fail. The provision is somewhat different from that suggested in Mr. Wilson's speech (at the time the president's letter to him was read), as it proposes raising the necessary government revenue by an income tax. This feature is essential, however, if sugar is placed on the free list. I believe this separate tariff measure would quickly pass both branches of congress if the general bill failed."

JOE DANDO INJURED

In a Wreck on the N. Y., P. and O. Railroad in Ohio.

Is a Brother-in-Law of Sam Harmon, Joe Douglas and Christ Newcomer, of This City.

URBANA, Ohio, Aug. 3.—The east bound New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio passenger train this morning, struck a freight car projecting from a side track here. Joe Dando, the engineer, was internally injured and Fireman James Douglas slightly hurt. The engine was badly wrecked and several freight cars converted into kindling wood.

The above telegram came to THE SENTINEL this morning over the wires of the Associated Press and knowing that Jos. H. Douglas, the well known restauranter of this city, was a brother in law of Mr. Dando, the injured engineer, our reporter informed him of the accident, which was the first knowledge he had of it and he immediately communicated it to Samuel Harman and Christ Newcomer who are also brothers-in-law of Mr. Dando.

The injured engineer is quite well known in this city. He was married to Miss Jennie Harmon, the daughter of Daniel Harmon, and the sister of Mrs Jos. H Douglas and Mrs. Christian Newcomer, the latter being the wife of the manager of the Harmon house.

Mr. Dando resides at Dayton, Ohio, and is an old railroad man. He began his career as a newsboy on the railroads and worked his way up to the position of an engineer on the railroad. His wife was at Milwaukee, visiting a married daughter, at the time the accident occurred.

STREET RAILWAY EMBARRASSED.

Tiffin's Lines in the Hands of a Receiver and May Be Sold.

TIFFIN, Ohio, Aug. 3.—Three of Tiffin's street railways which are embraced in the Tiffin and Interurban Consolidated Railway company passed into the hands of Meshech Frost as receiver today. The assets are $150,000 and the liabilities will likely exceed that figure. The appointment of a receiver was made by Judge Norris at the suit of the Cambria Iron company to secure a claim for $5,000, but this was merely a form, as the Consolidated, since it failed to float its $350,000 of bonds in New York City, is hopelessly involved and the only way out of the difficulty is the sale of all their roads.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS LAWS.

Commission Adopts a Constitution and Provides for a Supreme Tribunal.

MILWAUKEE, Aug 3.—The commission of the supreme lodge of the Knights of Pythias are holding conferences in this city. John H. Alexander, of Leesburg, Va., one of the commission, said that the commission had decided on a new constitution for the order modeled after the United States constitution, and that the most important new feature would be supreme tribunal, a sort of supreme court of the order. This court will be empowered to finally adjust all rulings and decisions of officers of the order in case of appeal.

INDIANA RED MEN.

A. G. Mickle Elected President and Marion the Next Meeting Place.

ANDERSON, Ind., Aug 3.—The Eastern Indiana Red Men held their seventh annual meeting here and 3,000 braves from different sections of the state were in attendance. At the annual business meeting in the afternoon Marion was selected upon the sixth ballot for the place of the next meeting. Albert G. Mickle was elected president and R. B. Buchanan secretary. Both are from Marion.

Narrow Escape.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 3.—The steamer Saturn had a narrow escape from being burned to the water's edge. After anchoring, her crew went ashore, intending to return at night. During their absence the fire started and gained considerable headway before it was discovered. When the firemen arrived they had to lay several hundred feet of hose and wade up to their necks in water. The deck was completely destroyed but the hull and machinery were saved.

Burned in His Cell.

KELSO, Wash., Aug 3.—At 11 o'clock last night Bill Tequaney, an Indian, while lodged in jail for the night, set fire to his cell and was burned to a crisp. A coroner's jury this morning exonerated all parties from blame.

TRAIN ROBBER FOILED.

Express Messenger Ferguson Shot Near St. Louis.

Wounded in Hand and Shoulder, But Not Dangerously—Hold-Up Prevented by Bravery.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 3.—An unsuccessful attempt was made last night to rob the Texas express on the St. Louis and San Francisco railway, but the plans of the robbers were frustrated by the determined resistance of the express messenger, who received two bullet wounds while defending his charge. Train No. 3, in charge of Conductor Mansfield, left the St. Louis Union depot at 8:25 p. m.

About 9:30, when the train was nearing Eureka, in St. Louis county, thirty miles from the city, Wells-Fargo Express Messenger Ferguson started to go from the car in which he was at work to the one immediately in the rear. At the door he was confronted by a masked man with a drawn revolver who commanded him to hold up his hands and inform him where the key to the safe could be found. But the messenger was brave. He too had a gun and he immediately began using it. The robber returned the fire and put one bullet through Ferguson's shoulder and another through his hand. Then he jumped from the train and escaped.

Ferguson believes he wounded the robber, but is not certain. The injured man was taken to Pacific, five miles west, where he was left in charge of physicians, and the train went on. His wounds are not considered serious.

Just after the encounter and within a few hundred yards of Eureka a bomb exploded under the wheels of the engine. This is the signal to stop and is considered evidence that the lone robber had confederates who were to board the train at this point, but the movement of the messenger toward the car necessitated immediate action on the part of the robber on the train, and his premature attempt was defeated by the pluck of the messenger. No attempt was made to board the train or to secure any of the money after the encounter in the express car.

A REMARKABLE ESCAPE.

ST LOUIS, Mo., Aug 3.—A most remarkable feature of last night's attempt at train robbery near Eureka, Mo., was the escape of the entire train and 183 persons from absolute destruction.

The desperadoes, who were undoubtedly accomplices of the fellow with whom Express Messenger Ferguson had a fight, forced open a car of dynamite that stood on the side track below the station Eureka, and stole two big dynamite cartridges there, intended for heavy blasting in quarries and mines. Each cartridge was capable of tearing to pieces tons of solid rock. They were placed by the dastardly bandits on the rails, the intention being to destroy the train and plunder the richly laden express car and probably the passengers. It is a miracle that the entire train was not hurled to destruction, for the miscreants who attempted to wreck it placed the cartridges within a few feet of a car which contained ten tons of dynamite. They then secreted themselves and waited for the train that was due to arrive a few minutes before 10 o'clock. The train left St Louis at 8:30 o'clock and was only a few minutes behind, the delay having been caused by the shooting of the express messenger by one of the robbers. When the forward wheels of the engine rolled on the cartridges there was a terrific explosion which lifted the machine from the tracks and tore the massive pilot from the bolts riveted to the engine. All the forward part of the machine was wrecked and twisted, and although it was able to carry the train a few miles beyond, it was so badly wrecked that another engine had to be procured. The entire train was severely shaken, the windows broken and the packages of letters thrown from the boxes in the mail car. It is wonderful how the car load of dynamite escaped. The explosion tore a great hole in the earth, wrested the rails from their fastenings, and flung the ties in every direction. It tore open one side of the dynamite car and exposed to view tons of the powerful explosive, yet for some unaccountable reason this great mass of dynamite, with energy enough to blow an entire city off the earth, did not explode. If it had not a person of all those 183 passengers would have escaped.

Lake View Fire.

HOWARD CITY, Mich., Aug 3.—The business portion of Lake View burned this morning. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT.

A Pickpocket Who Was Fooled for Once.

Attempts to Go Through the Pockets of a Lady—Burglars Busy Last Night.

This morning, during the parade of Barnum & Bailey's circus, a pickpocket attempted to ply his villainous trade on Calhoun street. The fellow had his hand in a lady's pocket when he was seen by another lady standing near by. The police were called and given a description of the crook. He wore a black stiff hat and was pox marked on the face.

BURGLARS ENTERED.

Last night burglars entered the residence of M. L. Schmetzer, No. 250 West Washington street. They broke into the pantry and took some lemons and ham and eggs. Nothing else was disturbed although the thieves had a good opportunity to get some valuable plate. Mr. Schmetzer says the burglars are welcome to the food.

[illegible]

Last night at Cutler's grocery, No. 268 East Wayne street, several police made an attempt to catch a burglar, who later turned out to be one of the former proprietors of the concern. The police were badly fooled.

BEHEADING DESERTERS.

China Shows No Mercy to the Disloyal.

News of the Asan Battle Confirmed—Foreign Countries Will be Neutral.

WASHINGTON, Aug 3.—The only telegram of public interest received at the Japanese legation today related to the request made by the Japanese government concerning the protection asked to Japanese interests in Pekin by the American charge d'affairs there. An answer to the previous telegram giving the information desired by the Japanese government had been sent already by Mr. Myrooka, the charge d'affairs here, but evidently had been delayed in transmission. The legation is without any official news concerning the reported repulse of Japanese troops at Asan. Considerable doubt exists in the minds of the officials as to the exact location of the place and there is some question of the reported fight. The minister of foreign affairs at Tokio has promised to keep the legation promptly informed of events, with a view to having them made public promptly here.

The Corean legation is still without any information from the home government concerning the condition of affairs in Corea with the exception of telegrams that have recently been received through other agencies from Seoul, its capital. Much regret is expressed by the Corean officials that war should occur on Corean territory, as it will result in great hardship to an already poor people. The presence of a very large army in the country is said by the Coreans to be a serious affair. Most of the natives are agriculturalists and the presence of armies will have the effect of disturbing them from their labors and resulting in a large loss to the crops. It is considered doubtful, however, whether Japan will make Corea the battle ground for the war already declared, and the belief is expressed that she will make a formidable attempt to capture Pekin and overthrow the existing dynasty.

It is reported that a number of Americans have signified to Japanese officers in this city their desire to enter the military service of Japan during the pending war with China. An ex-official of the United States to the former country calls attention to the fact that by the laws of the United States it is made a penal offense for an American citizen to enlist in the military service of either China or Japan when engaged in a war with a country at peace with the United States.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—A dispatch received here from Tein Tsin says that all deserters from the troops marching to Taku will be beheaded today. France was the first government to accept Great Britain's invitation to observe strict neutrality during the war between China and Japan.

In an interview today, the Hon Thos F. Bayard, the United States ambassador, said, in regard to the Chinese-Japanese troubles that the attitude of the United States would be one of benevolent neutrality, adding that the instructions sent to the United States envoys at Pekin and Tokio were direct evidence of that attitude. Mr. Bayard leaves London for Genoa on August 11, with the intention of enjoying a few weeks' yachting in the Mediterranean. Mr. Bayard will return to London before leaving for the United States.

BERLIN, Aug. 3.—A dispatch has been received from Tien Tsin from a German official source, saying that the German gun boat Iltis witnessed the sinking of the Kow Shing. It is added that the crew of the Iltis rescued 150 Chinese, who were struggling in the water. A dispatch received here confirms the report that the Chinese were victorious over the Japanese in the recent battle at Asan, Corea.

FOR ONE NIGHT ONLY.

All the Electric Lights Will Burn Tonight.

All the electric lights in the city will be turned on tonight on account of the show. The boon, however, is for one night only.

This morning one of the large female tigers in Barnum & Bailey's show gave birth to two fine cubs. The little fellows are great curiosities but the mother does not take kindly to them and they will be taken away from her and given to a female dog to nurse. A female tiger seldom gives birth to more than three cubs.

A Tremendous Strike.

Old prices go out. New prices take their places. All $40.00, $35.00, $30.00, $25.00 suits, or any suit in store for $22.00, for ten days only.

CIRCUS IN TOWN.

Barnum & Bailey's Show Take the City by Storm.

Dazzling Street Parade This Morning—Streets Thronged With People—Weather Clear and Cool.

It was Kate Field who said that P. T. Barnum was the one man who knew how to run a circus. Barnum is dead these many years, but his show, like John Brown's soul, goes marching on despite hard times, strikes or discordant elements. Mr Bailey, one of the principal owners of the show, has clearly demonstrated that he is a worthy successor of the illustrious P. T. B., and every year sees some pleasing innovation, so that the imputation of "the same old thing" does not apply to Barnum & Bailey's show.

The weather clerk dealt out as fine a day as anyone could desire—clear and cool, and the city's streets were thronged at an early hour. Barnum & Bailey were always noted for their gorgeous street parades and the pageant this morning was dazzling in the extreme. The small boy did not enjoy it any more than his father, who remarked to a friend at his elbow, as the glittering aggregation went majestically by, that "half the pleasure of such an occasion to the adult is the memory of the circus days of his youth."

The street parade was, in truth, simply grand. It began to move shortly after 9 o'clock and traversed the principal streets, which were black with people, many of them from nearby cities. The following was the order of parade:

Military band,
Gentlemen fox hunters and cavaliers.
Lady performers and side saddle experts.
Band chariot, drawn by ten horses.
Open den of five tigers and trainer.
Open den of four lions and trainer.
Open den of six leopards and trainer.
Open den of six panthers and trainer.
Open den of six hyenas and trainer.
Open den of four bears and trainer.
Open den of six wolves and trainer.
Band chariot Euterpe, drawn by ten horses.
Mounted ladies of the hippodrome.
Gentlemen hippodrome riders.
Three teams of Roman standing racers.
Three four-horse Roman chariots.
Two elephants with howdahs and Oriental beauties.
Caravan of twelve performing elephants.
Dromedaries with Asiatic riders.
Dragon chariot with harnessed camels.
Chariot of India, drawn by ten horses.
Cinderella's fairy coach.
Blue band.
Old woman who lived in a shoe.
Santa Claus.
Little Red Riding Hood.
Sinbad, the sailor.
Mother Goose. Steam Calliope.

The representation of the crowned heads of Europe was a special feature and portrayed the originals in an accurate manner. The following nations were represented: China, Siam, Egypt, Japan, Persia, Turkey, Holland, Belgium, Sweden, Spain, Italy, Austria, Russia, France, Germany, England and America. The line of march was: West on Columbia to Harrison; south on Harrison to Baker; east on Baker to Calhoun; north on Calhoun to Berry; east on Berry to Court, north on Court to Main; east on Main to Clinton; and thence to the grounds on the east side of north Clinton.

To manage so big a concern as Barnum & Bailey's circus requires no little ability. They travel on their own trains, and have sixty cars of extra size to transport the property, and the most comfortable coaches and sleeping cars for the officials and the show people. The total number of men employed is more than 600. There are 350 horses, 200 wagons of all kinds, and the running expense is about $5,000 a day.

All the groceries and staple articles used in the circus are sent on ahead to different points on the road where the circus will find them waiting for them. The more perishable articles are secured in the local markets as needed. Circus men are fond of coffee, and dispose of 105 gallons for breakfast alone. During the last six months eight tons of this berry were consumed by the circus followers, to say nothing of 2,400 gallons of evaporated cream, 217,000 pounds of meat, 92,500 pounds of bread and 2121 pounds of potatoes. Four thousand pieces of crockery are carried daily with the show, on which there is a breakage of 3½ per cent. The average number of meals served daily in the show is 2,165.

WANT TO KEEP THEIR MONEY.

School Trustees Refuse to Pay Surplus Funds Into the State Treasury.

RICHMOND, Ind., Aug 3. A number of township trustees and school corporation treasurers met here yesterday to take some action regarding the school law providing for the return to the state treasury of all surplus tuition funds left at the end of the school year. The total surplus in Wayne county, that under the construction of the law by Attorney General Greene Smith and upheld by the supreme court must be turned over to the state is about $29,000. A resolution was adopted by the meeting providing that the surplus be not paid at present, and this means they intend fighting the decision of the supreme court and that the matter will be carried to the United States court. This action was taken by the advice of [illegible] attorneys [illegible] it is believed that enough counties of the state will join with this to make the fight a general one.

CUT HIS PAL.

Two Frenchmen Indulge in a Lively Cutting Affair.

Charles Bercot Stabs Julian Parot in Two Places—Injured Man at the Hospital.

Whisky and a shameless woman came near being the cause of a foul murder on East Columbia street last evening about 6 o'clock.

Two Frenchmen, Julian Parot and Charles Bercot, got into an altercation over a woman and as a result Bercot stabbed Parot in two places with a pocket knife, causing dangerous wounds. Bercot had been out of town for some months and upon his return yesterday hunted up his old friend Parot and both proceeded to get full on bad whisky. The two played pool in Kiefer's saloon, No 44 East Columbia street, and later went to the room of a woman of the town not far from the saloon. Here the two Frenchmen got into an altercation over money matters, Bercot claiming that his pal had stolen $3 from him. The two men separated but some hours afterwards Bercot was coming west on Columbia street when he saw Parot and a friend coming towards him on the other side of the street. Bercot had his pocket knife out and crossed the street to meet him. When in front of Basel's saloon the older man jumped at Parot and cut him in the neck and also in the groin. As he lay bleeding on the sidewalk Bercot ran through the saloon into the alley between Columbia and Main streets and a few moments later was caught by Officer Flickinger.

Parot got up and walked over to the north side of Columbia street and fell exhausted from loss of blood near Henderson's feed store. The patrol wagon came up and took the wounded man to the Hope hospital, where Drs. Schrader and Myers attended. It was found that the artery in the left groin had been punctured by the knife blade and the man was slowly bleeding to death. The wound was less than an inch long; but the doctors made the incision much larger and tied a knot in the artery, stopping the loss of blood. The wound in the neck was about four-fifths of an inch long. The blade had penetrated backward instead of forward and thus instant death been averted, for had the blade pointed in the other direction the jugular would have been severed. Stitches were taken in both wounds and the injured man is resting easy today and will likely get well.

This morning Bercot was up before Mayor Oakley on a charge of assault with intent to kill. His preliminary was set for the 13th instant and in default of $5,000 bond he went to jail. The prisoner is a vicious looking fellow and very commonly dressed.

A plain drunk, from whom was taken a bottle of pure alcohol, was sent over for ten days.

Let the idle electric lights be turned on quickly.

Tennessee is safe. It rolled up a big democratic majority in the elections held in that state yesterday.

The republicans of the Fourth Indiana district nominated James E. Watson, of Rushville, for congress.

The American public, it seems, will never lose its love for the circus. The Barnum & Bailey show in this city today drew out a big crowd.

Senator Voorhees is recovering from his recent illness, but there is not much prospect of the senator participating in any further proceedings of this congress.

The board of public works ought to condemn some of the old frame buildings that are allowed to stand in the business center of the city. They are veritable fire traps and a menace to surrounding buildings.

This country leads the world in the use of telephones. The latest statistics show that in the United States with a population of 63,000,000, there are 227,000 exchange telephone subscribers, a number greater than that of all continental Europe, with a population of 300,000,000. Great Britain has but 45,080 subscribers, Germany 85,400, and France 24,000.

Here is what Abraham Lincoln said of the law: "Let reverence of law be breathed by every mother to the lisping babe that prattles in her lap, let it be taught in the schools, seminaries and colleges; let it be written in primers, spelling books and almanacs; let it be preached from pulpits, and proclaimed in legislative halls, and enforced in courts of justice; in short, let it become the political religion of the nation.

The annual report of State Gas Inspector Jordan shows that over $300,000,000 has been invested in manufactories along the gas belt in this state. The gas territory, he says, has nearly all been developed, and the fact that the pressure has fallen from 320 pounds to an average of 240 pounds shows how rapidly the supply is diminishing. The report states that the waste of gas during the first four years of its use in Indiana amounted to $20,000,000. Mr. Jordan believes the meter system is necessary to the proper saving of the fuel. He does not think that consumers will return to coal when the gas gives out, but that gas fuel will in time take the place of the natural article. Cheap pipe and cheap connections he regards as having caused a great loss of gas.

The Harvest Outlook.

The government's weather crop bulletin for the week ending July 30 is exceedingly important. It shows that this was "the third successive week of abnormally warm weather over the northern districts east of the Rocky mountains," and that in most of these districts there was "less than the usual rainfall," while "the continued drought over the principal corn-producing states of the central valleys and northwest west has resulted in great damage to the corn crop." Cotton, however, suffered but slightly and tobacco was doing well except in Ohio.

After the recent great and widespread heat and drought it would be unreasonable to expect a more favorable bulletin. As yet there is nothing in the weather reports to indicate an improvement in the harvests throughout the northern sections of the country.

Features in Tomorrow's Sentinel.

In The Sentinel tomorrow Bill Nye, the greatest of all living humorists, will talk about "Buzzards," and when we announce that fact the reading public may make up their minds that they will be furnished with something really good, for as an ornithologist Nye will not take a back seat with any one. Ornithology, he says, in beginning his article, is the methodical study and consequent knowledge of birds, with all that relates to them, and then he enters into a detailed history of ornithology.

"Looking over the history of science, and ornithology especially," he says, "it would seem that I am about the only scientist who has not written on this subject. I shall divide birds into two great classes, viz: First, those which sit up late at night. second, those which do not. Each of these classes, of course, may be again divided and subdivided into waders, scratchers, squakers, etc. and from this Nye starts off [illegible] the buzzard, confining himself to his subject about as well as he generally does.

No less humorous, and yet written in a different vein altogether, is the article of M. Quad on "Mrs. Gallup Is Going." The woman had heard the rooster crow three times. This she interpreted as a sign of death, and turning to her husband, she said: "Samuel you know what that means, don't you?" Mebbe you didn't hear it, but I did," she continued. "Yes, I heard a rooster crow three times and you know what that means. When a rooster crows at sundown it means there's goin' to be a death in the family within a month. Samuel Gallup, one or t'other of us is going' to expire be'ore we are a month older." And then M. Quad goes on and tells his story, but if the reader desires to know whether Mrs. Gallup died or not, he or she will have to read tomorrow's Sentinel.

The war between China and Japan is the topic of the hour, and for this reason The Sentinel will tomorrow give a brief history of the troubles which have caused these two nations to take up arms against each other. The Asiatic peninsula called Korea, which China and Japan seem to think a good enough bone to fight over just now, is a little tongue of land of only 90,000 square miles, but notwithstanding its limited size its population numbers 15,000,000. In the article tomorrow we will publish a map showing the relative positions of the three nations and will also give a history of Korea and a description of her resources and her history. The article will be interesting and timely and should be read by all who desire to be posted about this foreign war which is now attracting so much attention all over the world.

A great deal more than the usual amount of attention has been bestowed of late upon the sleeping car because of the strike of the Pullman employes and the sympathy uprising that followed among the railroad men late in June and interferred with travel and transportation through the first half of July. The facts in the early history of the sleeping car are not easy to obtain to a certainty because almost every printed account of the invention varies essentially from every other one, but it appears that the idea originated with John H. Morrison, of Detroit, in 1853, and afterwards taken up by Thomas F. Woodruff. Webster Wagner and George M. Pullman took it where Woodruff dropped it, brought the sleeping car to its present perfection, and made fortunes for themselves. Tomorrow's Sentinel will publish an article giving all the details about the history of the sleeping car and the perfection to which they have been brought.

The man of all others who has done the most toward bringing about a settlement of the difficulties between labor and capital in Colorado is E. T. Jeffrey, the president of the Denver and Rio Grande railroad. In these times, when the struggle between employer and employee is so fierce and the controversy so heated, it is interesting to note the attitude of this man, who, occupying so high a position, can yet sympathize with the feelings of the workingman. Perhaps it is because this railroad magnate was once a humble employee that he enters so fully into their sorrows and appreciates their conditions so thoroughly. Tomorrow The Sentinel will use an article telling of the career of Mr. Jeffrey and it will be interesting to every railroad man and other readers.

Twenty-three Stories High.

An architect says there is no reason, except limit of elevator power, why houses should not be built 1,000 feet high. As it is, no elevator at present devised can travel higher than 400 feet at most. So if we went up 1,000 feet we would have to change cars, so to speak, two or three times. There is under construction at New York city a building 23 stories in height. It is a source of satisfaction to New Yorkers that this will be taller than the famous Masonic temple at Chicago. Four other structures of equal height are now going up in various parts of New York city, and one of 30 stories has been planned for a plot of ground near the foot of Broadway.

The man who discovered that an iron frame was better than a stone or brick wall to give strength to a house was the man that made the modern skyscraping structure possible. That was only 10 years ago, yet later builders have already improved on the original idea. The frame is now made of steel instead of iron, rendering it stronger still. Now that they have begun there is no telling where the tower houses will stop. The lower floors of such houses will, however, be dark as Egypt if they are near to any other buildings.

The bill Mr. Harter of Ohio introduced into the national house while it was waiting for the senate to ratify itself provides that all existing tariff duties shall be reduced one-half by Sept 1, 1894, unless such reduction brings them below 20 per cent ad valorem, in which case Harter fixes special duties. His idea is to place a 20 per cent ad valorem tax on articles now paying a higher rate than that. After Sept. 1, 1894, he would have a uniform duty of 1 cent a pound levied on all sugars and molasses having 100 degrees of saccharine strength, with a proportionally lower rate for sugars and molasses not up to full strength. He would put a uniform duty of 4 cents a pound on coffee and 8 cents a pound on tea. The internal revenue tax on beer and all liquors he would make $2 a barrel. After Sept. 1, 1899, his bill would reduce all customs duties to 12 per cent. He says this is a compromise bill, which is what is wanted, and if adopted it will give us a surplus revenue every year from the beginning. Mr. Harter's bill has one merit, at any rate—we can understand it.

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

A CHOICE OF MARTHA WASHINGTON OR 1830 STYLES.

During Dog Days the Designers Put Forth Feelers For the Fall Trade—Some of Their Proposed Innovations—Popular Wedding Presents.

[Copyright, 1894, by American Press Association.]

Fashion takes a rest in the dog days and leaves her devotees to feed upon the ideas that are built up either to suit one or another private demand or put forward as feelers for the fall trade. These designs are presented not so much as real fashions as to see how far the designers may go in producing innovations. No one can tell which one may gain popular favor, as often a new style that was put forward with hesitation has been the season's favorite.

Just now we are shown several very different plans, as we may call them. One is the 1830, with magnified berthas; another a sort of Martha Washington outfit, having, however, been pruned and shaped to fit in with the present day. The principal part of this style is the waist, its snowy mull tucker and its lifted overdress. The underskirt or petticoat is not quilted, but is of silk of darker color and heavier texture than that in the overdress. The sleeves in this sort of overdress should be close on the upper part and flowing at the bottom, but the modern modiste thinks she can improve upon that by making great giant sleeves and perhaps a bertha which shows under the dainty muslin tucker.

MODIFIED 1830 FASHIONS FOR TODAY.

Then poor Marie Antoinette has her memory revived by several little touches, but none of the fancies for fall show such bold strokes as the 1830 modes. These are not portrayed by any wavering, uncertain lines. They are what they call themselves, pure and simple, and I think they will have a strong support. We cannot complain, for it is many a long year since we had a mode so universally becoming, and, above all, so adaptable to all requirements.

It is only when we see a genuine 1830 gown disfigured by the owner wearing a square box coat above it or overloading it with cheap tawdry trimming that we fall to abusing it. These dresses are pretty, the cloaks belonging to them are stately, and the small capes and other addenda in keeping, and therefore making a refined costume. But we could dispense with the close bonnet without tears.

I fear we shall have to endure cottage bonnets the coming season. Those shown us now are but the entering wedge. Our grandmothers wore them, and they all looked pretty in them, so I suppose we will become reconciled. It is the face under the bonnet more than the bonnet over the face that is beautiful.

It was thought by many that draped overskirts and polonaises were to become universal, but while one or the other is seen occasionally the skirts are either quite plain or trimmed in decidedly ancient style with narrow garniture, mostly depending upon the fineness of the needlework for its success.

A few gowns intended to please those who like to have something following but not leading the fashion are shown. One of this style of dresses was made of drab and brown mottled silk barege, the waist plain spencer, slightly draped across the bust from the shoulder to the throat. There was a broad girdle of chestnut brown pongee, with a gilt buckle. The sleeves were double puffed. The skirt was fitted to the figure around the hips and down to the knees, where it was held up in three or four gathers under brown pongee rosettes. At intervals all around the skirt fan plaits of pongee were let in.

Another pretty dress for a young lady was made quite a novelty by the ingenious use of material. The dress itself had pale blue mousseline delaine as foundation, and the plaited portion of the skirt was made of that and the lower part of the waist. The upper part of the skirt, the square bertha and elbow sleeves were of silver gray taffeta. There was a row of valenciennes 6 inches wide where the upper and lower portion of the skirt joined, headed by a box plaiting of gray ribbon. Around the bertha there was a frill of lace 4 inches wide, headed the same way. The sleeves ended at the elbow under lace frills, and a narrow ribbon belt ended in a four looped bow at the left side. The whole design was a model of dainty grace.

NOVELTIES IN SUMMER GOWNS.

Among the modified 1830 dresses I chose two for mention as types which women will do well to follow, as they have every essential which entitles a lady to the renown of a "good dresser." One of them was striped damask the groundwork slate gray, with black and pale green stripes. The skirt was round and gathered everywhere except the front breadth, which had a wrinkled drapery across it. The sleeves were decided gigots, made of the skirt material. The rest of the waist was made of all over embroidery done in dark red and green upon an ivory ground. The waist was frilled at the neck and gathered to a point in front. There was a narrow peplum added to the waist, forming a basque, and a very prettily draped bertha, with a point of the same reaching to the waist point, and both made of pongee deeply scalloped and embroidered to match the rest. This bertha was made full on the shoulders and where it was turned in the gathers formed an upright little puff that looked very cute and pretty.

The other gown was of hairline novelty, drab and brown. This skirt was also round and gathered full to the waist, with a wrinkled front drapery. Down one side was a black velvet ribbon, with a three looped bow set near the bottom. The waist was round and had a rosette made of three rows of black velvet ribbon. The sleeves [illegible] puffs, each having three lines of ribbon down the outside, and black velvet ribbon also formed [illegible] having [illegible] on the shoulder. The front was filled in with a vest of drab crepe de chine. Nothing could be more genteel and refined, and yet it is quite in the fashion and will be at least until what [illegible] upon our destiny.

[illegible]

Then came these [illegible] butter spreaders in all sizes, and they cost from $12 to $30 a dozen. It is not the fashion to put butter on your bread with your table knife. There are fancy silver and gold ice tongs, some of them having a spoon on one end and the clawlike tongs on the other end, and they have resolved another question as to how to spend money in useless things while millions are starving. There are silver cake and bread knives, with steel serrated edges. These are certainly useful, but you can get one that will cut just as well for $1, and these cost $20 upward. If one... There are salad spoons and forks, ice balls and tea kettles and asparagus holders or tongs, and, in fact, too many things to remember today. I may say that just now round dishes are the fashion, and also opalline glass with flecks of color and the metallic lights showing through the milky glass. They are pretty, but clear crystal is more refined.

For some unexplained reason round linen in various weaves has suddenly taken an unusual prominence for all kinds of knockabout frocks. The ecru made up with dark blue, pink and old rose is certainly pretty. The linen hopsack and duck make very durable gowns, and they wash beautifully. I notice some of the latest of these made with Bulgarian embroidery in fast colors around the bottom and on the jacket or blazer or waist. Feather stitchings in different colors are also often seen around the skirt, and one white linen duck gown had an elaborate pattern braided upon it in narrow black soutache. This was very effective and stylish. Braiding always was pretty, and we shall see much of it during the coming season, though in most instances it will be picked out with beads.

NEW SKIRT AND FANCY APRON.

I saw a pattern gown in an establishment, a day or so ago, where there was a long Eton jacket made of black cloth, with a figure outlined upon it by a braid of gold soutache. I cannot say that I thought it in very refined taste, but it certainly was very novel and striking. It was to go with a black cloth suit, and across the front at the bottom there was to be a narrow pattern of the same style of braiding when the gown was completed.

The prospect now for the new colors is that they will be rich and dark, the plum, prune, wine and maroon shades all having a tint hitherto unknown, which makes these colors more than beautiful. The browns have a gloss and sheen like nothing that has yet been achieved in that color, reminding one of the warm polish on chestnuts and hazel nuts. They are not metallic, but glossy, like nuts or leaves. Brown, from the palest biscuit on up through the whole tribe of tans and mordores to seal, will be a leading color, though those mentioned above and the greens will also be popular. Robin's egg blue is seen even in the broadcloths and will doubtless be much worn, as that is a very becoming shade, particularly to brunettes.

I must mention a dainty apron for home wear which is not only pretty, but serviceable and sensible. The apron is a yard long and 1½ yards around and made of blue and white striped linen. A bias band of the same 2 inches wide is stitched two inches from the bottom, and it is gathered to a belt which ends in long hemmed ends in the back. There is a front which has a low vest plaiting of dark blue linen, and this flares open in the center below the waist line. There are bretelles edged with Russian embroidery around the top and short caps on the shoulders. A row of blue and white embroidery lies flat along the edges of the bretelles, and these cross in the back like simple suspenders. The whole apron is worth consideration. Shortened it would be pretty for children. At the same store I took note of a new petticoat of jaconet, with four rows of lace insertion above three tucked ruffles of sheer lawn, edged with lace. The lower ruffle had two rows of lace. It cost $18, but was delicious.

MATE LEROY.

Only One Could Do It.

"Last Sunday," said the clergyman to his congregation, "some one put a button in the collection bag. I won't mention names. I will merely say that only one individual in the congregation could have done so, and I will expect the same member after the service to replace the button with a coin of the realm."

After church a well to do but close fisted individual sought an interview with the clergyman in the vestry.

"I—er," he began hesitatingly, "must apologize for the—er—button incident, which I can assure you was an accident. I happened to have the button in my waistcoat pocket, together with a shilling, and took out the former by mistake. However, sir, here is the shilling."

"Thank you," said the clergyman, taking the shilling and gravely handing him the button.

"By the bye, sir," said the man, "I cannot understand how you should have known that it was I who—er—committed the—er—rather to be regretted mistake."

"I didn't know," replied the clergyman.

"Didn't know! But you said, sir, that only one individual in the congregation could have done so."

"Just so. You see, sir, it is scarcely possible that two individuals could have put one button in the bag, is it now?" said the clergyman, with a bland smile.

It was so much easier for the button contributor to say "good day" than to answer this puzzling question that he made his bow at once.—Christian Advocate.

Where There Are No Odors.

"In the country once known as the 'Great American desert,' embracing a portion of Texas and Arizona, there are no odors," said H. P. Stater of Dallas. "There luscious grapes and many other fruits grow, especially near the cross timber country, but there is no perfume. Wild flowers leave no smell, and carcasses of dead animals which in dry seasons are very plentiful, emit no odors. It was always supposed to be a treeless plain, upon which no plant could grow or breathing thing could live, but a large part of it is now successfully cultivated, and but for the rarity of the atmosphere, causing the peculiarity I have named and the mirages, which are even more perfect than in the deserts of Sahara, no one would look upon it as a strange country now. Another singular feature common to the desert land is that objects at a distance appear greatly magnified. A few scrubby mesquite bushes will look like a noble forest. Stakes driven into the ground will seem like telegraph poles."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Sad Condition of a Nickel Plate Employe.

Dying From the Effects of a Slight Accident Which Happened Two Weeks Ago—Casualties.

About two weeks ago Levi Potter, of No. 359 West Main street, this city, while engaged in his duties as switchman for the Nickel Plate railroad, accidently scratched his left knee. The wound was slight and Mr. Potter did not pay much attention to it for a day or so. It grew worse, however, and became so swollen and sore that Potter was confined to his bed. He has grown steadily worse and yesterday Drs. Stemen opened the wound and dressed it. Had the patient not been so ill they would have amputated the limb. There is but little hope of the man recovering. In fact the doctors have given him up. Mr. Potter is married and about thirty-five years of age. He is a new employe on the road.

FOOT MASHED.

F. Schophorst, a carpenter for the Pennsylvania company, living at No 103 West Third street, had his foot badly mashed at the east yards yesterday. Dr. George C. Stemen attended.

FINGER MASHED.

H. Horstman, a laborer in the east car shops, had the index finger of his right hand mashed this morning. He lives at 203 Hanna street.

THUMB BROKEN.

James Butler, a barber, is suffering from a broken thumb, the result of getting off a moving street car.

A trolly wire near the corner of Main and Calhoun street broke yesterday afternoon and hung down dangerously near the pavement for a few moments. Street Railway employes were very prompt, however, in repairing the break.

While pitching a ball in the yard at the government building Capt. Tom Blair yesterday afternoon broke his right arm. In drawing back his arm, the muscles in some way became twisted and as the ball left his hand the bone of the upper arm snapped. The fracture was reduced by Dr. H. A. Duemling and Capt. Blair was removed to his home, 220 East Wayne street.

LONG-LIVED INDIANIANS.

Lewis H. Morgan and Wife Have Been Married Over Seventy Years.

Columbus, Ind., Aug. 3.—At Henryville, Clark county, resides a couple who have been married over seventy years. Lewis H. Morgan married Elizabeth Freeman when they were eighteen and sixteen years respectively. Grandma Cross, as everyone calls her, is past ninety-eight, and lives with her son, Wesley, who is seventy-six, and often remarks, "mammy will outlive me yet." The old lady is remarkably well preserved, and only a short time since she declared she had "not an ache nor a pain." Last winter she fell from a step and broke an arm below the elbow and the local physicians advised amputation as the only thing to save her, but she would not hear of it and had the arm put in a plaster of paris mold and the bones firmly united.

Samuel Williams, another resident was born January 7, 1799, and is now past ninety-five. His desire is to live until 1900, so it can be said, "he lived in three centuries." There are a number of other old settlers and when they have a "meeting" an extra large platform is erected for their accommodation. Prominently among them may be mentioned Rev. Seymour Guernsey, aged eighty-three; Patrick Plunket, aged eighty-five; "General" Taylor, about eighty seven, and Colonel J. F. Willey and wife, about eighty-five. Emily Biggs, who died three months ago, was ninety-three. Her husband, Abner Biggs, died five or six years ago, aged about ninety.

PLAYED FAKER AND MUST DIE.

R. Jeffries Saturates His Hair With Oil, Lights It and is Fatally Burned.

Jeffersonville, Ind., Aug. 3.—An accident occurred to Robert Jeffries yesterday which will prove fatal. A few days ago a street faker was in town selling soap and attracted crowds to his wagon by making believe that he anointed himself with coal oil and set fire to it. Some of the boys in the city conceived the idea that they would start in the show business, and they all began learning tricks for their respective parts. Young Jeffries kept his part a secret from the rest until the show opened, when he played it with a startling and tragic end. Jeffries had secured a cup of coal oil from his mother, with which he saturated his hair and neck, then telling the boys to keep their eyes on him and watch that everything was as he claimed it to be, struck a match and applied it to the oil, which was to burn off, leaving his hair uninjured. No sooner had the blaze touched his hair than he was enveloped in one mass of fire. His cries of agony so frightened his companions that they fled, leaving him to his fate and to fight the fire alone. Neighbors being attracted to the scene went to his rescue and extinguished the flames. He was badly burned and inhaled so much of the fire that he cannot recover.

No Truth in the Story.

London, Aug. 3.—The Brazilian legation in this city says that there is no truth in the story cabled from Buenos Ayres, on August 1, to the effect that 3,000 insurgent troops are marching upon Porto Alegre, the capital of the state of Rio Grande Do Sul. The legation officials say that, on the contrary, insurgents are fleeing before the government troops.

Lobbyist Gets Five Years.

Paris, Aug. 3.—Dr. Cornelius Herz, the Panama lobbyist, was sentenced in Contumacism today to five years' imprisonment and to pay a fine of 3,000 francs.

Indians Killing Deers.

Denver, Col., Aug. 3.—Game Warden Callicott, has been notified that, as usual at this season of the year, a band of the Navajos from Utah are ruthlessly slaughtering deer for their hides in the western part of Montrose county. As the Indians are off their reservations they are subject to civil law and deputies have been sent to arrest them.

CROPS IN GREAT DANGER

Protracted Drought Has About Destroyed All Prospect for Corn.

Indianapolis, Aug. 3.—Southern and central Indiana are in the midst of a protracted drought, and the injury to the growing corn is so pronounced that it is causing much concern to the farmers. The field corn, which was planted late owing to wet weather in the spring, is just beginning to silk, and unless copious rains fall within a few days no ear will be formed on the stalk. The blades in many sections are withering under the influence of the heat and on high land the stalks have begun to tassel though hardly waist high. It is believed that the corn planted in a clay soil will be an entire failure, and only good rains can save that in the low or bottom lands. In many sections the meadows have been completely burned out and the farmers have despaired of securing the usual second crop of clover. Grass is very scarce in all sections of the state, and the price of dairy products is gradually advancing to winter figures. In some parts of the state there has been no rainfall of consequence for six weeks, and where this is the case the potato as well as the corn crop will be very short.

Eureka!

Mr. Thomas Batte, editor of the Graphic, Texarkana, Arkansas, has found what he believes to be the best remedy in existence for the dux. His experience is well worth remembering. He says: "Last summer I had a very severe attack of dux. I tried almost every known remedy, none giving relief. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was recommended to me. I purchased a bottle and received almost immediate relief. I continued to use the medicine and was entirely cured. I take pleasure in recommending this remedy to any person suffering with such a disease, as in my opinion it is the best medicine in existence." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by druggists.

A BAD WRECK.

Tramps Explode an Oil Tank Car at Bucyrus.

One of the Tourists and Eight Cars Consumed by the Flames—The Road Blocked.

The death of one man and possible three or four others and the destruction of eight cars and 400 feet of railway track is the result of the carelessness of matches by tramps on a train. The ill-fated train was the west bound Pittsburg freight, No 73, the scene of the accident Bucyrus, Ohio, and the hour 4 o'clock this morning. When the train stopped at the crossing of the Ohio Central road and just as the engineer was about to pull ahead a terrific explosion occurred in the middle of the string of cars and sheets of fire shot into the air and spread over the train and along the tracks. A tank car, filled with coal oil or gasoline, had exploded, presumably from a match in the hands of a tramp. The fluid was a mass of flames in an instant. The shock of the explosion broke the connection of the front end of the train with the exploded tank car and the engineer pulled up out of reach of the flames. The fire spread rapidly to the rear, however, and before an engine could hook onto the caboose five cars loaded with coal, two with ties and two empties were burning. The alarm was sounded, but for some reason the Bucyrus fire department failed to respond. A call was then made upon Mansfield and Crestline and the fire departments from those cities soon had engines and men on the scene. They came too late, however, to save the cars and their cargoes, and at noon today a dispatch received at Superintendent Law's office stated that the five coal and two tie cars were entirely consumed and two box cars were still burning. The message also stated that the dead body of one of the tramps, a negro, had been taken from the wreck. Other tramps who were known to have been on the train are missing and it is possible that some of them were caught in the wreck and killed by the explosion and their bodies consumed. The dead negro was not burned badly and it is thought he was killed by the shock of the explosion.

About 400 feet of track was destroyed, the ties being burned completely and the rails twisted and bent beyond repair. The road is blockaded and passenger trains are running around the scene by way of Martell, over the Ohio Central and the Big Four roads.

The wrecked train was in charge of Conductor Thomas M. Hall, with Engineer Hedges at the throttle. An Associated Press dispatch from Bucyrus, sent out early this morning, states that the train broke in two and the collision of the two sections was the cause of the disaster. This is far from the truth, as both the conductor and engineer say that there was no noticeable jar to the train when it stopped for the crossing, and that the explosion did not occur until the train had started forward again. The wreck is a costly one, and being due to the carelessness of tramps, is much more aggravating to the officials than if it had occurred from other causes.

RAILROADS REFUSE TO PAY.

It now develops that the railroads after having received the protection of the United States courts during the late strike now refuse to pay for the benefits received. A telegram from Indianapolis says: "The notice of the federal clerk of the courts to the various railroad companies in Indiana to appear and pay the costs of the several injunctions issued at their demand against the strikers has developed the fact that the roads intend to resist the payment of the costs. They were charged for copies of the restraining orders but say that these were part of a proceeding for the benefit and protection of the United States and that no part of the expense can be lawfully charged to them."

A PHANTOM ENGINE.

"It was back in the '70s," said a veteran Lake Shore engineer, "when I ran a pusher on the Union Pacific that this story of a phantom locomotive was told. The engine was used to assist the trains up between Laramie and the summit of Sherman hill.

"I was in charge of an engine pulling the regular passenger train up the hill one gray morning. Just as we neared the snowshed that used to stand at Harvey siding an engine suddenly popped out in front of us. Before I had time to even get a square look at her she disappeared in the shed and was lost to view. The whole thing happened so suddenly that I was dumbfounded, but I was positive I had seen an engine, and so was my fireman. I at once shut off and the train came to a standstill. The conductor came over and asked what was the matter. 'Bill,' said I, 'I just saw an engine pop out of that snowshed and just as suddenly disappear again.'

"'Are you positive?' said the knight of the punch, and he peered up the track, and I asserted I was. 'We had better move on, anyhow, and if you see one it will probably keep out of our way.'

"So we proceeded up the hill, keeping careful watch for the mysterious engine which made my heart jump into my throat as she emerged from that snowshed. The siding reached, but there was no sign of an engine threatening us with a head end collision. The trainmen laughed at me and said I must have seen a spirit. Had it not been for the fact that my fireman sided with me I don't know but that I should have given up and admitted that I was mistaken.

"A careful watch failed to reveal any sign of the stray engine, and when we stopped at Sherman all the trainmen had a hearty laugh at my expense. But I was still positive and insisted on making a hunt, and we found an engine hid away in the little roundhouse located at that point.

"The engineer was a man named Jordan. He had overlooked a new time card and had started to take his engine back to Laramie after helping a freight up the summit. He could see the headlight of our engine before he emerged from the snowshed. This accounted for his sudden disappearance. His engine was almost stopped when he came out, and it did not take long to get to going back up the hill again at a lively rate. The engineer thought we did not see him and he would just hide in the roundhouse at Sherman and no one would be the wiser for his escapade.

"We did not report him, but the officials learned of the incident in some manner and his head went into the basket."

MINOR MENTION.

Road Foreman of Engineers John Ross, of the Wabash, was in the city this morning.

Thomas Prichard, jr., apprentice in the Bass machine shop, has resumed work after a couple days' illness.

Henry Datmeyer, Henry Dreyer and A. Ranner, of the Pittsburg blacksmith shop, are off duty today on account of sickness.

M. Stark, of the Pittsburg planing mills, is the only one on the absentee list today. He is looking after some private business.

A. Rist and George Haverly, of the Pittsburg blacksmith shop, have gone up into Michigan to spend a few days in piscatorial pleasures.

Every railroad leading into the city brought in immense crowds of country people today. The attraction is the Barnum & Bailey circus.

The Barnum & Bailey show came in over the Pittsburg and will leave over the Wabash tonight after the performance. It exhibits in Toledo tomorrow.

The Wabash company is erecting a new telegraph office in the Peru yards in order to facilitate the meat traffic. The office will be open both day and night.

Mesdames Paul and James H. Hanley, wives of the Pittsburg employes, left this morning for Grand Rapids, where they expect to visit relatives a few weeks.

Charles Lesington, formerly of the Pittsburg freight house and later night clerk at the Randall hotel, has taken a clerical position in the Nickel Plate freight offices.

Ed. Belding has resigned his position at the electric light works and gone to Wellsville, Ohio, to assume the management of the Citizens' Electric Light company's plant.

The Wabash came in for a fair share of the Niagara Falls excursion business, although the company did not decide to sell tickets until two days previous to the date of the excursion. Fifty-seven tickets were sold by Agent Thompson.

A small fire in the pattern shop of the Wabash, near the round house, created considerable excitement at 8:30 o'clock this morning. The fire department was called out, but their services were not needed. The fire was extinguished by the shopmen.

Of the fifty-four railroads in Ohio only nineteen have thus far paid the excise tax (under the McMahon law) for the support of the railroad commissioner's department. Tuesday was the last day for payment without the penalty of $1,000 lump fine and $25 per day for each day of delinquency.

Thomas Shepherd, the old Pittsburg boilermaker, is lying very ill. He is over eighty years old and has been on the retired list for two or three years. David Andrews, another veteran of the same shop, who is very ill, is resting easier today. He is in a critical condition, however, and his friends fear he is beyond recovery.

Mrs. John Kelley, wife of the well known Pittsburg boilermaker, and her daughter went to Grand Rapids last night for [illegible] with friends. M[illegible] has been off duty for [illegible] months with a crippled limb, [illegible] much improved that he is at [illegible] considering the question of resuming work.

Passenger Agent H. G. Thompson, of the Wabash, is kept pretty busy nowadays answering inquiries concerning the Put-in-Bay excursion, which takes place Sunday, August 12. Indications point to an immense excursion party from this city on that day. The train will start from Andrews at 5:12 in the morning and from this city at 6, reaching Toledo at 9 o'clock and Put-in-Bay at 12:30 o'clock.

Applications for work in shops and on the road have been so numerous that the officers whose duty it is to employ this kind of help have in many cases posted huge placards notifying applicants that no help of any sort is needed; all of which shows that a very large precentage of the mechanics and laboring men of the country are out of employment, and forbodes a hard winter for wage earners.

The advertisements of telegraph schools guaranteeing steady employment at good wages to its graduates is offset by the advertisement of the same institutions, and often in the same papers, to agents and operators, which in substance is as follows: "To agents and operators needing assistance I can send good steady men, well advanced in telegraphy, who will be willing to assist about the office in return for the privilege of getting main line practice and have your assistance to a situation after becoming competent. To agents needing helpers receiving a small salary we will give $5 to take our students."

It is expected that the new union passenger station at St. Louis will be opened for regular traffic by the first of next month. President Taussig, of the Terminal Railway association, and General Manager Ramsay are already established beneath its roof and are personally pushing matters as fast as due regard for excellence of work will permit. The train sheds will cover thirty-two parallel tracks. The baggage room, three hundred feet long, is completed, and the gates leading from the esplanade to the platforms are in position. The waiting room, it is claimed, will far surpass in elegance of finish and furnishing and in conveniences anything of the sort in the world.

LAST NIGHT'S FIRE.

A Fierce Blaze Located in a Very Dangerous Place—Fire Lads Do Good Work.

Last night about 11 o'clock a dangerous fire was discovered in the old brick building occupied by Miller Bros., rag dealers, and located adjacent to the Nickel Plate tracks and just west of the Calhoun street crossing. The fire evidently originated from spontaneous combustion in a bale of rags. The fire department was called out and handled the dangerous fire in a splendid manner. The lack of street lights and the dense, stifling smoke from the burning rags made it difficult to handle the fire. However, the burning building was fairly flooded with water and the fierce blaze literally drowned out. The fire was in a bad place to spread and had it done so would have swept the whole block.

The approximate damage and insurance is as follows: The building on the corner of Calhoun and Columbia streets, owned and occupied by William Dreier & Bro., to stock and building, $1,000; insurance, $15,000. The building adjoining Dreier & Bro. on the north, owned by E. Wolaver, and occupied by Isaac Weil & Co., damage to building and stock, $500, covered by insurance. Damage to building occupied by the Fort Wayne Beef company and owned by Mrs. Mary Smith, of this city, $500; insured. The building owned and occupied by H. N. Ward, No. 8 East Columbia street, damage to stock, $1,000; Insurance, $4,000; to building, $500, insurance, $1,000. The building which was totally destroyed was owned by W. W. Case, formerly of this city, now of Denver, Col. Loss, $15,000; small insurance. This is the third bad fire in this place. The loss on stock to Miller Bros. will amount to $2,000. Amount of insurance is very small. The fire was rung out at 3 o'clock.

The cellar of Dreier Bros. had five feet of water in it when the fire was rung out. The estimated losses by the fire were greatly exaggerated this morning. Dr. Sexton's office was not damaged.

DUG HIS OWN GRAVE.

Edward Walker Attempts Suicide in a Cemetery.

Arlington, Mass., Aug. 3.—Late last night the superintendent of a Catholic cemetery, near Cambridge Line, discovered a new made mound of earth in an unauthorized place. Upon investigation he found a shallow hole, with a man lying in it in an unconscious state. A bouquet of flowers lay upon his breast and a half filled bottle of laudanum lay beside him. He was alive, and after three hours hard work was restored to consciousness. It was ascertained that his name is Edward Walker, twenty-seven years of age, living on Brattle street, Cambridge. He has been considered a young man of great promise and has shown marked ability as a designer of humorous pictures for the illustrated papers. About two years ago he was dangerously ill from typhoid fever. While he was recovering from this attack his intended wife died. The sad news was broken to him before he had fully recovered his strength, and it is thought his mind has not been right since that time. Walker dug the grave himself.

OUR MINISTER TO KOREA.

John M. B. Sill of Michigan and the Important Work He Has Before Him.

Now that the United States has offered her services as mediator to settle the differences between Japan and Korea Hon. John M. B. Sill, United States minister to Korea, attracts considerable attention as the representative of Uncle Sam at the scene of the imbroglio. Mr. Sill was nominated to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Korea on Jan. 8 of the present year. He is a Michigan appointee and has for years been one of the best known men in the state's educational circles.

He was born in Erie county, N. Y., Nov. 23, 1831, and began life by teaching a country school in Hillsdale county, Mich., when he was but 18 years of age. In 1853 he entered the Michigan State Normal school and enjoyed the honor of being the first male graduate the following year. His ability was so greatly admired at the school that he was at once engaged as professor of English, and in 1858 and 1859 he acted as principal.

MINISTER J. M. B. SILL.

In 1863 Mr. Sill became the first superintendent of Detroit's public schools and served two years. He then resigned to accept the presidency of the Detroit Female seminary. After 10 years of hard work he again became superintendent of the public schools of Detroit. In 1886 he returned to the post of principal in the Michigan State Normal school, a position he retained until 1893.

He has published several well known educational works; has taken the orders of the Episcopalian church. He is short and stout, looks like a cleric, bears his 64 years with becoming dignity and is a thorough scholar and gentleman. He is a strong willed, determined man and an able opponent in controversy. In addition to the offices already mentioned Mr. Sill was president of the Michigan State Teachers' association in 1861 and 1862, a member of the Detroit board of education for two years and one of the board of regents of the University of Michigan from 1867 to 1869. He has long been interested in Korea and its people and was well informed about the strange country before he set foot upon its soil.

HE SKIPPED OUT.

But He Had Good Reason For Not Waiting Any Longer.

He was worried as he sat there over the six little bundles that he carried. They would drop from his arms or roll from side to side. But, being chivalrous, as all men are, he arose when the lady in the white flannel dress entered the car and consigned his seat to her.

Now, his bundles harassed him still more. His endeavors to keep them from dropping aroused his friend's amusement.

"Wife send you shopping?" he inquired.

"Oh, yes, but I don't mind that. All I'm afraid of is losing one of my bundles."

After the train had shot around the curve he began to count the parcels again.

"There, I knew it!" he cried in a tone of worriment. "I've lost one."

"Anything of value in it?" queried his friend solicitously.

The other paid no attention to the question. "One, two, three, four, five," he counted. "I had six, and here are five. One's gone," he observed gloomily.

"Can't you tell what it contained?"

"Wait. I'll see. This is spool cotton, this is braid, this is buttons, this is soap, and this is ink. O Lord!"

"What's up?" queried his friend.

The man with the bundles glanced about him nervously. "Sh!" he whispered. "Don't speak loud. I remember what was in the package I lost."

"What was it?"

"A couple of eggs. You see, my doctor has ordered me to drink sherry and egg every night. They haven't always fresh ones at home, so I make it a rule to bring a couple up with me. O Jerusalem, but I've done it now!" he groaned.

"Why, what is the matter? Where did you drop the eggs?"

"Didn't drop 'em at all. But I know where I lost 'em. Great Scott! I get off at the next station."

"No, you don't. You live three stations beyond."

"Yes, but I leave this car at the next station if it takes a lung. I'm going to skip before war breaks out." He began to edge toward the door.

"Why are you so frightened?" insisted the friend.

"You see that lady to whom I gave my seat?" whispered the other.

"Yes."

"She looks smiling and unconscious now, doesn't she?"

"Yes."

"Well, she is sitting on those eggs. I left the package on the seat."

The friend grinned. The man with the parcels bolted from the car as the train stopped.—New York Recorder.

The success of Miss Annie M. Beam, of McKeesport, Pennsylvania, in the treatment of diarrhœa in her children will undoubtedly be of interest to many mothers. IT IS MAGNIFICENT.

The Princess Cash Store Opens Its Doors for Business.

One of the Finest and Most Conveniently Arranged Retail Business Houses in the City.

Last night at 8 o'clock the Princess Cash store, in the Treestman building at the corner of Calhoun and Washington streets, opened its doors for business and until a late hour it was thronged with visitors, who passed thru the various departments of the big retail business house, admiring the convenience of its arrangements and the large and handsome stock of goods of every variety which was displayed on its shelves and counters.

The universal verdict of everyone was, "It is magnificent," and these words express in a brief sentence a description of the mammoth department store, for it is perfect in every detail of its arrangement and admirably adapted for supplying the wants and needs, in the mercantile line of the public of Fort Wayne and the surrounding towns and cities, making it, in fact, one of the most finely equipped department stores in the west.

The Sentinel a few days ago gave a detailed description of the building and the arrangement of the various departments, and last night, when lit up with electric lights, the mammoth room presented a most handsome appearance and was seen to advantage. The store is everything that its name implies—a general store, and the purchaser can be supplied with almost every need without leaving the building. Groceries, provisions, fruits, candies, cigars and tobaccos, queensware, glassware, lamps, clocks, tinware, boots and shoes, dry goods, gents' furnishings and clothing—all have their separate and distinct departments; yet each one of the departments contains a complete stock and is in itself a veritable store.

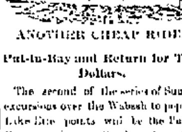

Mr. A. C. Angove, the enterprising proprietor, has surrounded himself with a large and efficient corps of clerks and the immense crowd which visited the store last night were nicely taken care of and shown through the different departments of the new building. The Sentinel reporter, besides being shown through the store below was conducted to the upper floors, where the stock rooms are located, and these are filled with goods to replenish the stock below, two large elevators being in the rear part of the building for this purpose.

That this new and handsomely arranged department store will prove a popular favorite admits of no doubt. Low prices and the best of goods will win and this Mr. Angove has made a study and a feature, as he buys in such large quantities that his discounts amount to an enormous figure, and the discounts he gives to his patrons, so that they can make a saving of 20 to 25 per cent. by purchasing at the "Princess."

To be brief, the new store which Mr. Angove has opened in our city is handsomely equipped in every respect and can supply the wants of the public and save them money. The Princess has already commenced to do a big business and the most sanguine anticipations [illegible] The Sentinel today that the public is invited to visit the store and inspect the arrangement and see the goods, whether they desire to purchase or not. Everybody will be given a cordial greeting and will be treated pleasantly.
